

DetRo attorney apparently has had enough

Sludge firm changes lawyers in mid-stream

It appears at least one DetRo Recovery attorney has had enough.

According to a letter addressed to Romulus City Council and signed by Michael Feiler, the attorney representing the city, "that a fee dispute had broken out between DetRo's legal counsel and the company and that the legal counsel refused to acknowledge the substitution of new attorneys for DetRo.

"This was resolved in a hearing before Judge (Tom) Roumell on April 23, 1982. Aside from that matter of representation (which was settled by the agreement of DetRo to pay Mr. Ward $8,000 cash), there were three other matters scheduled."

DetRo is continuing its legal battle for the right to construct a sludge-to-fertilizer plant in Romulus despite the switch in attorneys. The legal battle, over a year old, remains in the Michigan Court of Appeals.

Feiler also revealed that he had made a motion that Judge Roumell disqualify himself to hear the case

"on the basis that the new legal counsel retained by DetRo is a former law clerk of Judge Roumell's and is the fiancée of Judge Roumell's present law clerk."

According to Feiler's letter to council, "Judge Roumell agreed to disqualify himself in view of the public interest which surrounds this case."

However, the motions to clarify judgment and settle record will still be heard by Judge Roumell who has asked the two parties to meet in his courtroom at 10 a.m., Fri., May 7.

Should cats be licensed?

If dogs are licensed, should cats also carry a license tag? That's the question Belleville realtor Dorothy Schroeder asked before council Monday night.

Dresses, women and Mother's Day

Although it is appropriate to pay tribute to women on any day, and although we should be paying tribute to a mother on "Mother's Day," we feel every day should be a tribute to women and mothers. But this motley crew above got into the picture for their excellent dressmaking skills which went on display at an Open House recently. The Spring Crafts Show was sponsored by the Romulus Recreation Department and the Romulus Senior Citizens Center. Above are Anna Osby (from left) who make a skirt and blouse; Donnie Gray, who cut out a three-piece suit; Adelia Wilson, (night gown), Nina Smith (two-piece suit); Dorothy Anderson (dress and skirt); Susie Whitworth (jumper suit) and Dorothy Igenogle (a jacket). Whew, that was a toughie.

'Ominous Bill'

City treasurer urges defeat of proposed income tax law

City Treasurer Beverly McAnally is rallying a campaign to defeat Senate Bill S-3-525.

Although those letters and numbers may not mean much to the average person or resident, the articulate treasurer sees an ominous future for taxpayers if the bill should be enacted into law.

"The Bill, recently discharged from committee, will allow non-residents to vote in local elections when the issue of city income tax is on the ballot," explained McAnally.

"When we look at alternatives to higher property taxes, one alternative that cannot be ignored is that of a city income tax that would allow cities to collect taxes on the salaries earned in the community but taken someplace else to be spent," she told the council.

"In the case of Romulus, there would have to be a charter amendment to allow a city income tax, and that would be subject to a vote of the people. Whether non-residents could vote on that issue is questionable, however, once we had decided to permit it by a charter amendment, the implementation would be subject to non-resident voter approval, should this bill become law."

She went on to say that "Through the years we have encouraged industry to locate in Romulus and have been discouraged that so few of our residents were able to find employment here." If S-3-525 is enacted, the benefit allowed the City of Detroit, Hamtramck, Highland Park and other cities, which collect revenue from non-residents through an income tax, would be protected while denying Romulus that option because of the large employee base of the airport and General Motors who do not live in Romulus but who could vote on the issue," McAnally stressed.

"When one considers the usual low voter participation in elections in Romulus weighed against the highly motivated vote one can assume from employees of these two giant employers, an income tax would have a hard time passing. It would be another door closed to the people of our city in determining the best alternatives to escalating property taxes," she concluded.

Comcast balks at paying fee

Cable TV franchise in jeopardy

Is the city ready to return to square one on the Cable TV issue?

It appears so, according to a memorandum from Romulus Mayor William M. Oakley.

Comcast Cablevision has the local franchise, however, to date the cable TV officials have not forked over a $50,000 fee to the city according to city officials.

In his note to council, Mayor Oakley points out that "as you know I have repeatedly attempted to get our Cable TV company (Comcast) to proceed with their side of the agreement, that is, to sign the franchise agreement and deposit the $50,000 fee.

"To date," the mayor continued, "I have received only promises. In that the contract has been negotiated and awarded and in that the residents of our community are awaiting the availability of cable TV, I feel that it is totally unfair for the company to delay any longer."

Mayor Oakley urged that council adopt a resolution authorizing him to inform Comcast that unless payment is received and the franchise agreement signed by a certain date, that he (Oakley) would contact the other two competing cable TV companies which originally made proposals in an effort to determine if they are still interested.

Comcast officials were not available yesterday for comment. Council was to act on the recommendation at last night's meeting.

For improved service

Michigan Bell to invest $1.7 million in Romulus

Michigan Bell announced today it plans to spend $471 million to expand and improve telephone service throughout the state this year — including about $1.7 million in Romulus.

David K. Easlick, company president, pointed to the size of the planned construction expenditure as "proof positive that Michigan Bell isn't about to abandon its commitment to quality service simply because we expect to be operating under a different structure."

He was referring to the January 8 consent decree agreement that calls for Michigan Bell and the 21 other Bell operating telephone companies to be spun off from the Bell System. The agreement ended the U.S. Justice Department's seven-year-old antitrust suit against American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

As a divested company under the decree, Easlick said, Michigan Bell would continue to provide basic local service under regulation by the Michigan Public Service Commission.

He said the company would own and operate local exchange facilities for transmitting voice, data and pictures, including those for long distance carriers which originate or terminate in Michigan Bell exchanges.

Easlick said this year's planned construction budget is down about 8 percent from last year's $513 million total.

"The difference is directly attributable to the state's depressed economy," Easlick said, noting that Michigan Bell lost customers in each of the last two years.

"Still," he said, "we have faith in the state's ability to rebound and in our future as a strong, healthy local telephone company serving Michigan residents as we've done for more than 100 years."

In breaking down the planned 1982 construction budget, Easlick said $144 million has been earmarked for equipment to handle calls in Michigan, another $144 million for new cable, poles and other outside plant facilities, $115 million for telecommunications equipment for customer homes and offices, $44 million for land and buildings and $24 million for equipment.

During the year, telephone company crews will complete the installation of electronic switching equipment in a number of metropolitan area communities: Auburn Heights, Detroit, Pontiac, Washington and West Bloomfield.

Outstate, crews will be finishing up electronic installations in Big Rapids, Grand Rapids, Grattan, Harrison, Holland, Iron Mountain and Norway.

By the end of the year, Easlick noted, Michigan Bell will have 130 of the sophisticated electronic switchers can handle voice, data and picture transmission far faster and more efficiently than the electro-mechanical equipment they are replacing, Easlick said. As a result, Michigan Bell will be better equipped to serve the growing volume of high-speed data communications — computers "talking" to other computers over telephone lines.

The electronic equipment also enables customers to have Touch-Tone* service, direct international dialing to overseas countries and several Custom Calling features such as call forwarding, call waiting, three-way calling and speed calling.

Huron feels pinch of police protection costs

Price tag on parttimers also rising rapidly

Everyone knows the high cost of providing full-time law enforcement.

But Huron Township officials are concerned about the rising price tag on even part-time police officers.

Treasurer Christine Gamber and Trustee John Puskar voiced their opinions on the cost of part-time police officers at last week's board meeting. Mrs. Gamber, especially, was outspoken in her concern.

"We interview three or four and hire one part-time officer," she said. "But we don't keep them very long." Mrs. Gamber pointed out how each applicant takes a written exam and an oral exam. "This takes other police officers off the streets while they are testing the new applicants."

She said that it takes between $600 and $700 to outfit a part-time police officer.

"So much time, money, effort and manpower is put into this. It seems like such a waste of time," Mrs. Gamber said of the constant turnover of part-time police personnel.

Puskar agreed with Mrs. Gamber. Although both members of the Trustee Board are in favor of a strong police force, they questioned the efficiency of the current procedure of adding part-time officers.

"I think the Township Board should look down the road toward more full-time police officers," Puskar said.

Trustee Fred Ashby told Puskar that the township just didn't have the money to add fulltime police officers now.

Puskar acknowledged that fact and explained, "That's why I said this board should look down the road to the time we can add full-time police officers."

The discussion was prompted by Police Chief Joseph Carney asking for Township Board authority to hire another part-time officer. The Board voted 7-0 to authorize Carney to add Andrew Morelli as a part-time officer, bringing Huron Township's total to nine part-time officers.

Tobi is Van Buren spelling champ

Who can ever forget their first experience in a challenging "Spelling Bee"?

Most of us can still remember some of the words we stumbled on, but few of us can say "we won".

Tobi Russell will never forget the victory last week as she downed some 32 challengers in the Van Buren District spell-down to emerge as "champ".

Russell, a fifth grade student at Elwell Elementary School, is the winner of the Van Buren Public Schools District Fifth and Sixth Grade Spelling Bee.

Roberta Goldston, runner-up, is a sixth grader attending Tyler School.

Thirty-two children competed for the title of District Champ. The students represented the top four spellers from each of the eight elementary schools.

Judges for the event, which was hosted by Tyler Elementary School, were Phyllis Greer, Supervisor of Community Education and Supervisor of Instructional Media. Bruce J. Maslin Supervisor of Compensatory Education, who served as pronouncer with Patricia Richards the Coordinator of the District Spelling Bee.

"I would like to say I feel very grateful because there were a lot of good spellers" commented Tobi who is the daughter of Clarence and Sharron Russell, 45223 Wear road Belleville.

Robert's Goldston is the daughter of Arthur Hemphill and Laura Goldston 9190 Parkwood Drive, Belleville.

Paper bees and flowers on the bulletin board, one for each of the eight elementary schools in Van Buren School District and a yellow chalk "Welcome" on a green chalkboard greeted the moms, dads, finalists and elementary school principals who attended Tyler Elementary School April 28 for the Van Buren Public School District Fifth and Sixth Grade Spelling Bee.

Arranged in two rows at the front of the room the students were seated in the cold grey folding chair. Mrs. Richards, also a sixth grade teacher at Tyler, explained the rules and added, "You all came in that door winners. We narrow it down to two here but even when you leave your still leaving winners."

Oh, wait until next year!

'Wild Card'

Mike Novick (left) and Robert Carter got the job of editing the film, "Wild Card," which garnered students in John Prusak's media productions class at the William D. Ford Vocational Technical Center first division honors in the 13th annual Michigan Student Film Festival. The 16 mm film was an animation done with 4- by 6-inch cards and photographed to give the look of motion. More than 50 students in all contributed in the drawing and photographing of the cards. The award-winning film will be shown at 1 p.m. Sunday (May 1) in Friend's Auditorium of the main branch of the Detroit Public Library, along with the other first division rated films of the festival. Admission is free.

Romulus to commemorate 'Heritage Day' on Sunday

The site of the initial Romulus settler has been selected this year as Romulus' fifth local historical site.

That site is where Samuel Tobyne and his family and later descendants brought the westward movement.

"The dedication ceremonies and a Sunday picnic are scheduled in commemoration of the historic designation," said Pearl Varner, vice president of the Romulus Historical Society. "We are inviting all our residents and friends to join us in the ceremony."

Romulus City Council and Mayor William M. Oakley have signed proclamations in marking the site as historical. Tobyne settled the land which is presently owned by Edward and Sharon Rush. The Rushes have built a greenhouse and business on the site, located at the southeast corner of Henry Ruff and Van Born Road.

The dedication ceremony and Sunday picnic will be held on Heritage Day, May 16, during the celebration of Michigan Week.

The public is invited to attend the ceremony which will be at 1:30 p.m. at southeast corner of Henry Ruff and Van Born Road, Romulus. This piece of land is now occupied by Rush's Flowers, 30617 Henry Ruff Road.

Following the program everyone is invited to attend a community picnic which will be held at Kennedy Park, Five Points, Romulus.

All those attending the picnic are asked to bring their own lunch and table service. Coffee and cold beverage will be provided. There will be games and prizes for the children.

In the year 1826, Samuel Tobyne purchased 82.08 acres of land from the U.S. Government in Romulus Township—T 3S. Range 9 E. It sold for $1.25 an acre and was patent dated November 2, 1826; receipt #2227. The land was located in section 2).

According to the 1827 Michigan Territorial Census, Samuel Tobyne settled in Romulus with his wife and five daughters. The Federal Census of 1830 shows Samuel Tobyne, his wife, and four daughters still residing in Romulus.

Since the daughters listed here are one less than those listed in the 1827 Census, we can assume that either one died, or married and left the household.

The Illustrated Historical Atlas of the County of Wayne, Michigan, published in 1876, Romulus Township is described as "A howling wilderness of marsh, forest and wolves."

An inspection of original Romulus Township Records shows that Samuel Tobyne served as Highway Commissioner from April 1835 through March 1837. The original minutes indicate a road (TOBYNE) named in his honor.

The road began in the northeast corner of the township and ran diagonally across the township to Pullen's Corners (now known as Five Points).

Heritage Day guests are invited to follow the original Tobyne Road route as they travel from the dedication site ceremony to the picnic at Pullen's Corners (Five Points). A map will be provided guests along with the day's program sheet.

Wayne County Commissioner Paul G. Citkowski has been named one of the Outstanding Young Men of America, an honor affiliated with the United States Jaycees which recognizes young men throughout the nation for professional achievement and community service.

Citkowski was told of his selection in a letter from Doug Blankenship, Chairman of the Advisory Board of Outstanding Young Men of America which has headquarters in Montgomery, Alabama.

"On behalf of the entire Board of Advisors, I extend our sincere congratulations. Young men like you represent America's leadership of today as well as its potential for the future," said Blankenship He added:

"This tribute brings recognition to yourself, your profession, and to the organizations which you serve." Blankenship said Citkowski will be included in the 1982 edition of "Outstanding Young Men of America," an awards volume similar to "Who's Who in America."

Celebrating his 28th birthday last week, Citkowski is the youngest elected and re-elected official ever in Wayne County, but is serving his fourth two-year term on the Board of Commissioners and also his fourth consecutive year as Chairman of the General Government Committee.

He also serves on other committees and boards appointed by the commissioners, the most recent a Special Equalization Committee hearing local units of government argue for taxation relief after the most recent proposed increases.

In another tax area, Citkowski, as Chairman of General Government, is working to exempt Wayne County from the 12-year tax abatement granted the General Motors new factory project in Hamtramck's Poletown. Already he has asked for the exemption from Detroit City Council, which referred the proposal to the city's Tax Increment Finance Authority which will hear the idea next week.

If the exemption is granted on the one-mill as requested, the County will save about $12 million over the 12-year abatement period. Citkowski points out. He also notes that the County has lost about $7.6 million through tax abatements since 1974.

The one-mill exemption that is requested compares with the same amount exempted for the County by the Downtown Development Authority which is revitalizing the central business district mostly with abated funds.

Citkowski was nominated for the honor by Miss Jacqueline D. Jones, a graduating student at Wayne State University and herself a winner of an Outstanding Young Lady of America in 1980. She is Recording Secretary of the Barton-McFarlane Neighborhood Association in the district Citkowski represents, and is considered an exceptional community leader, said Citkowski.

"It is an honor to be chosen for the award, but it is a special honor to be nominated by Jacqueline," said Citkowski.

Carney told the Board that he had added one police reserve to the force and asked permission to run advertisements to interview candidates for the police reserves.

At the previous Township Board meeting, the Trustees voted 6-0 to add Gary Michael Michalski as a part-time police officer. Michalski, 29, is currently laid off from the Detroit Police Department, where he has been employed three years. Carney said the part-time and reserve police officers would be used to "carry us through the summer and special activities."

There was a long discussion on police protection and Huron Township's dependence on officers that are laid off from other communities. All Trustees agreed if Detroit called back all 200 of its laid-off officers that Huron Township would be "hurting" for law enforcement. That's why Puskar stressed "looking down the road" to prepare for hiring Huron Township's full-time police officers rather than part-time people.

In two related events, the Board voted unanimously to send Police Chief Carney to a national Police Chiefs' convention June 27-30, and it voted 5-2 to "state into the record" the payment of an additional $828 for the police LEIN (Law Enforcement Intelligence Network) machine that should arrive in early August.

In other action last week, the Township Board:

—Authorized spending $443 to add a deck to the township's mower for cutting grass. The Department of Public Works official said he had received estimates of $441 and $443 for the deck. The DPW also asked the Township Board to authorize purchasing a front-end loader with a backhoe. When the cost was not known, Supervisor Richard Sullivan asked the department head to make a study of what was needed, the cost and other pertinent data and come back to the Board with a report.

—Discussed signing a 60-month lease on a new copy machine. The copier they looked at would cost $199.50 per month, plus $50 a month for a collator and $20 additional per month for an automatic feeder. Clerk Mary Lou Carey said she was not satisfied with the machines she had seen and wanted to demonstrate other copiers before having the Board authorize the lease.

Variety of services

Huron studies cost savers

Can senior citizens of Huron Township receive a variety of services for only $295 a year that is now costing them $2,000 annually?

That's a question the Huron Township Board pondered at last week's meeting. Clerk Mary Lou Carey pointed out that the Out-County Area Agency on Aging (OWCAA) can provide the services for less than $300 what is costing Huron Township $2,000 from the Romulus Help Center.

The Out-County Area Agency on Aging was designated on Oct. 1, 1980 as the regional agency mandated to plan, allocate and administer Older Americans Act funds for services for senior citizens in western and southern Wayne County.

The agency is now in its second full year of operation and provided 870,640 units of service to 24,243 senior citizens in the region during the past fiscal year, according to Edward H. McNamara, chairman of the board of directors and Mayor of Livonia.

McNamara said OWCAA is currently funding the following services for senior citizens: Legal assistance, home repair, health screening, homemaking, consumer education, telephone reassurance, chore, nursing home ombudsman, library, information and referral, senior center staffing, adult day care, congregate nutrition and home delivered meals.

Mrs. Calrey said she was not positive how many services would be provided to Huron Township senior citizens but said the OWCAA promised the same services as the Romulus Help Center. Huron Township now pays $2,000 annually to Romulus Help Center for the same services offered by OWCAA.

"I'm not saying we should completely pull out of working with Romulus Help Center," Mrs. Carey told the Board last week. "But I recommend we take the $295 from the amount we pay the Romulus Help Center and give it to the Out-County Area Agency on Aging to see how much they will do for us."

The Board voted unanimously to approve Mrs. Carey's suggestion. McNamara's letter to the township said that the OWCAA Board of Directors is comprised of one representative from each of the 34 communities it serves. "(We re) asking each community to provide three cents per capita as an equitable cash match distribution," his letter stated.

"It is imperative that this match be provided in order to continue federal funding at the present level," McNamara continued. "To the extent that these funds are not made available, federally funded services for senior citizens would be reduced proportionately."

"I would hope that you would utilize whatever resources are available in order to protect services for our elderly," McNamara stated.

Huron Township's representative to the OWCAA Board is A. J. Haener, who can be contacted at 753-4382 for more information. Paul Petro, director of OWCAA may be reached at 425-6340.

Gift shop is newest Romulus business

Bonnie Poet is an attractive, personable young lady who some economists may label "foolish".

Mrs. Poet has launched her first business venture right in the heart of downtown Romulus during what all of us recognize as the worst economic depression in the history of this country. She's opened up "Bonnie's Boutique", a gift shop located at 36607 Goddard.

"My husband and I were thinking about opening a shop up North," Mrs. Poet explained during her recent grand opening that lured most of the V.I.P.s to the shop, including Romulus Mayor William Oakley. "But after discussing the prospects with my husband, I said 'why not open the shop here in Romulus?'"

"You must have been reading my mind," her husband replied. "And that's how all of this got started," Mrs. Poet continued.

A native of Romulus who graduated from Romulus High, Mrs. Poet admits that "this is my first business venture. But I really believe in what I'm doing and from the response I've received from the community, I know we're going to make it."

The store contains a variety of items including Fenton glassware, figurines, ceramics, many kitchen items and will be featuring women's clothing in the near future."

Although she doesn't expect much from the tourist trade, Mrs. Poet points out that "local people are the key to the success of such stores."

"I really enjoy meeting people," Mrs. Poet added, "and, I know people say, 'heavens, why would you try a new business during a depression?' My answer to that is if I can make it now, then in good times there will be no problems."

In Sumpter May designated as 'clean-up' month

May has been designated as "Sumpter Clean-Up Month".

And township supervisor James M. Reeves is urging all township residents to take part in the clean-up campaign. He pledges the township's entire DPW force in the campaign "to remove the scars of the worst winter in recent memory."

"However, residents should take note," Reeves continued, "that the rubbish collectors will pick up only small amounts of building materials. They will not pick up wood, brush, wire or car parts. No truck tires will be handled."

"But the workers have been instructed to pick up as much as six tires, one stove, one couch, washer and refrigerator from residential areas."

Items should be along the roadside and neatly stacked and this pick-up is for residences only — no business places will be serviced at this time.

On the east side of Sumpter Road, a large item pick-up has been scheduled for Thurs., May 6 as well as Thurs., May 20; for the west side of Sumpter Rd., the large pick-up is set for Thurs., May 13 and for Thurs., May 27.

This pick-up is for large items only, township officials caution.

Residents must call the township clerk's office for pick-up. It is not a blanket pick-up throughout the township.

If residents have large items to be picked up, contact the township clerk's office at 697-0900 or 461-6201 during regular business hours Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

"I'm urging everyone to take this opportunity to clean up our township so that we can all be proud of our community," Reeves concluded.

Job skills

With new technology being introduced daily in a wide range of professions and industry, job skills change with the times. And Wanda Buckner, counselor for the Wayne Metropolitan Community Service Agency, has set up offices in the Sumpter Recreation Building, 24560 Sumpter Road, to help the unemployed develop employable skills.

Sumpter offers WEP: adult job programs

Jobs are hard to come by these days. Recession and depression are common words heard by those seeking the limited number of opportunities.

But there are jobs for those who can train and develop new skills. The Wayne Metropolitan Community Services Agency has an Adult Work Experience Program for those who are willing to spend the time and energy to learn.

The WEP has opened an office in the Sumpter Township Recreation Building, 24560 Sumpter Road, and WEP coordinator, Wanda Buckner, says the program offers opportunities to the economically unemployed or underemployed persons.

The WEP is funded with Title IIB funds, under the direction of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners through the Wayne County Employment and Training Administration. The current program duration is through September 30, 1982.

"The intent of the WEP is to improve the marketable skills, to broaden training, and to increase upward mobility of those seeking to enter the economic mainstream," Ms. Buckner said.

"The immediate goal is to increase the employability of eligible persons, and the ultimate goal is to equip participants with motivation, skills, and necessary experience to become economically self-sufficient and consequently tax-contributing members of society," she added.

Specifically, the goal of the WEP is to enhance the employability of 400 individuals who need assistance in becoming accustomed to basic work requirements by developing good work habits and basic work skills through the short-term employment our program offers.

Individuals served by the program must meet the WCETA Title IIB eligibility criteria requirements.

The program is designed to serve those persons who have never worked before or have not worked for a prolonged period of time, who are sincerely interested in obtaining employment and entering the unsubsidized work force.

There is a 400-hour limitation for all participants who enter our program. Participants work 20 hours per week for 20 weeks of participation. All worksites must comply with CETA regulations developed by the U.S. Department of Labor and must be developed in the public non-profit or private non-profit sector.

All participants must complete the performance objectives of the program which include developing good work habits, mastering survival skills, pursuing career information, and the attendance of all Job Search, Job Retention Workshops.

The Job Search/Job Retention Component is a recent addition to our program, designed to enhance the participants' abilities to find unsubsidized jobs while participating in our program.

The National Urban League, seeking to equal opportunity in all sectors of society, addresses the problems of income, employment, education, housing, and health care for non-whites in America.

1980 Sumpter murder case

Romulus man loses appeal

A 55-year-old Romulus man who was found guilty of the first degree murder of a Sumpter Township woman lost a bid for an appeal last week in the Michigan Court of Appeals.

The case gained notoriety because the accused, Sam Ross, tied the woman to his car and dragged her across a field. The woman's battered body was later discovered in a Sumpter Township field.

Ross was meted out a life in solitary confinement. That sentence was handed down by Judge Thomas Foley.

Ross asked for an appeal of the jury verdict and sentence on the basis that Judge Foley didn't warn jurors in this case not to talk about the case and to give limited weight to testimony from the victim's sisters about previous assaults by the defendant at the time.

In rejecting the appeal, the court didn't, however, close the door on all avenues of appeal. They told his attorney that he (Ross) may request a mental competency examination to determine his competency to stand trial at the time of the incident and, upon the results of the examination, return to the courts.

The victim, Ruthie Mae Hayes, was 37 at the time of her death. Ross was sentenced in August of 1980 for the crime.

For county executive post

McAnally tosses support to McNamara

Beverly McAnally, Romulus City Treasurer, has given her endorsement to Livonia Mayor Ed McNamara in the race for the newly-created office of Wayne County Executive Officer.

"Wayne County Democrats are in an enviable position when choosing a candidate for County Executive because they have at least two outstanding candidates to pick from," McAnally explained.

"In too many elections, voters have to pick the lesser of evils, however, this year Democrats can pick the better of the best in choosing between Mayor McNamara and Wayne County Sheriff Bill Lucas, who are the major Democratic candidates for the new office."

It is the measure of past success that decided McAnally's support, she says: "Mayor McNamara has spent 12 years as the Mayor of the second largest city in Wayne County and in that capacity has guided the city to outstanding economic development and the lowest operating tax millage in Wayne County."

"Jobs and taxes are at the heart of Wayne County's problems, coupled with the lack of planning and coordination of effort," she continued.

"I feel that Mayor McNamara has a thorough understanding of the problems of Wayne County developed through many years of service with the Michigan Municipal League and numerous other area-wide committees and panels. He also understands Detroit and its impact on Michigan. He will work cooperatively and constructively to resolve the myriad problems of this region.

"In addition," she added, "McNamara has not shrunk from recognizing the difficulties experienced by the City of Romulus in dealing with the Wayne County Road Commission in its management of the airport, McNamara has indicated that he would include persons from this area in the decision-making about the future growth and development of that facility."

"I hope that Western Wayne County Democrats will unite behind a proven leader who understands us, is one of us and who will work for us as well as the rest of the Wayne County," she concluded.

Credit Cards: costly convenience?

Credit cards can be used to buy gasoline, register for a class, or travel through Europe. But unless you understand the expenses and risks, you could be making costly mistakes by relying on credit.

Credit cards are popular because they're convenient. Approximately three credit cards exist per family in the U.S. But unless they're used properly, that convenience is costly.

One way to curb costs is to pay the balance in full each month and avoid finance charges. The cost of "using" money for more than a month will generally outweigh the convenience of using credit cards.

Billing disputes reduce that convenience. Over 400 complaints were registered solely against department stores in one city last year. But billing errors aren't as widespread as some may think. The most frequent complaints are misunderstandings, caused by such developments as cancellations of ordered merchandise.

Other major sources of misunderstanding are the amounts charged for interest and the annual fee. In some cases, the cancellation hasn't been posted.

Before and after

There are historic reasons why the Hiram G. Morris house, 13925 Huron River Drive, is getting a facelift. The house was the home of Romulus' first settlers and throughout the years had shown its wear and tear.

Presently being renovated by Frederick Morris Hay, Jr. and Gerald A. Diepenhorst, Jr., both of whom are great grandsons of Hiram G. Morris, the original owner of the house, the site is a welcome sight.

After millage defeat

Romulus stunned, study their next move

With 20 percent of their $16 million budget slashed last week when voters turned down an 8.5 mill renewal levy, Romulus school officials are in a quandary.

Do they go back and urge voters a second time within a span of 60 days for the money? Or do they slash programs further and lay off teachers?

"We're still studying the results of the election," said Supt. of Schools William Bedell. "Believe me, we have some very difficult decisions to make. We realize the economy hasn't been conducive to passing millages, but this was a renewal, not a tax increase.

"In fact, we will lose state aid money if we don't keep the same levy that we had a year ago and that will prove costly in the long and short run for our residents and students."

Bedell did get some good news last week, however.

The Romulus Booster Club has agreed to donate $25,000 to help pay for the proposed 1982-83 athletic program. This figure will include a carry-over from this year, gate receipts, and whatever contributions they can raise.

The first fund-raiser will be an auction which will be held on June 12 at the high school football field. Any items you can donate will be appreciated.

Junior Block will serve as the auctioneer and the auction will have everything but clothing.

Please call Judy Schick at 941-2273 or Mary King at 941-1441 if you would like items picked up. You may also send items to school with your children and they will be stored until June 12.

The athletic program will not be provided at junior high and will not include cross country, tennis or a separate girls' track team. Boys and girls will run together.

"Without the high school athletic program, we would lose at least 20 kids from our fourth Friday count and consequently the State Aid for these kids," Bedell explained to the School Board. The district will pay the remaining $47,425.

REDUCING CAVITIES BY 65%

Because studies have shown that the addition of a small amount of fluoride to the water supply can reduce cavities by as much as 65%, some 7,000 communities have chosen to treat their water with fluoride over the past 30 years. Fluoride is the single most effective element we have today for preventing tooth decay.

There are other methods of applying fluoride to the teeth such as: topical application at your dentist's office; at-home application of fluoride gel by a mouth-guard type applicator; special fluoride mouth rinses; fluoride tablets; and brushing with accepted fluoride toothpaste. But, as a whole, fluoridated water has proven to be the most effective and simplest application. Is fluoridation safe? Yes! Literally hundreds of carefully conducted scientific research studies have shown that the use of fluoride at the levels recommended for optimum dental health (about one part per million in water) has no harmful effects. Its use is supported by virtually all national and international health organizations.

Toothpick bridge

Gary Tredar shows his first place winning "Toothpick Bridge" along with the trophy awarded him and the University of Michigan's Traveling Trophy which will be put on display at Romulus High School until the 1983 contest.

Romulus High student is top bridge builder in U-M contest

The Seventh Annual Toothpick Bridge Building Contest, sponsored by the University of Michigan Department of Civil Engineers, resulted in a first place victory for a Romulus High School student.

Gary Tredar, Class of 1982, was awarded the first place trophy during the competition.

Under the direction of Howard Miller, Wood Shop Teacher at Romulus Senior High School, Gary's bridge was designed and constructed solely of toothpicks and glue.

Each bridge was judged on appearance and compressive strength. This was Gary's first attempt at building a bridge.

Other students who participated in the contest included Mark Stepchuck, Jerry Morgan, Larry George, and Brian Smith.

Belleville seeks paper mache mask creators for contest

It was a tremendous success last year. And a lot of fun, too.

And Valerie Higgins, program coordinator, promises it will be equally successful this year. Mrs. Higgins announced this week that the "Paper Mache Mask" contest will be staged again in conjunction with the popular Strawberry Festival Parade.

"The rules are very simple," Mrs. Higgins explained. "The mask must be a full head mask of a character of your choice to be in a costume. All of the contestants will be furnished a ride in the parade."

The age range for the contestant may be anywhere from pre-school to high school student.

There is a deadline, however, to enter the contest. That deadline is June 13. Judging will be conducted at 9:30 a.m. on June 18 at the reviewing stand on the corner of Main Street and Fourth Street in Belleville.

Instruction sheets and a list of reference books on how to make the masks will be available at the Belleville Library and the Belleville Area Chamber of Commerce.

Masks will be on display at the Fred C. Fischer Library for a month.

Please send entry blanks to Valerie Smith Higgins, 41535 McKinley, Belleville, 48111. Mrs. Higgins also serves as the Strawberry Festival Parade Coordinator. She may be reached at 699-2714.

Candid Camera?

State aid payments arrive

Romulus and Van Buren school districts did receive some good news last week as the school state aid payment checks arrived.

Rep. Thomas H. Brown (D-Westland) announced the distribution of state aid payments to school districts in the 37th District for April.

The breakdown of state aid payments to school district includes:

Romulus will receive $588,399, while the Van Buren Public Schools got $526,642.

Golden Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fitzwilliams of the Skidway Lake area in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, formerly of Romulus, were honored guests at a golden wedding anniversary party April 23.

Hosted by their 11 children at Roma's of Garden City, the dinner-dance reception was attended by some 120 guests who were greeted by a formally attired "bridal couple" and their family.

Married March 3, 1932 in Ecorse, the Fitzwilliams family tree includes Mrs. Anthony (DeLore) Czach of Garden City; Mrs. James (Vera) Pollard of Romulus; Ms. Mickey Durham and Howard Allen Fitzwilliams of Trenton; Gerald of Texas, Ohio; Leslie of Belleville; Colleen of Inkster; Patricia of Mesa, Ariz.; Mrs. Don (Marjorie) Twitchell of Westland; Michael of Los Angeles, Cal. and Mrs. Albert (Lorraine) Lok of Battle Creek. There are also 19 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

One of the highlights of the party was a singing telegram from "Eastern Union" sent by a grandchild and great-grandchild living in California.

The Fitzwilliamses, who resided in Romulus for close to 40 years, are members of the Moose Lodge in West Branch and the 50 and Up Club. Mr. Fitzwilliams, who enjoys his hobby of miniature railroads, also belongs to the Masonic Lodge and does citizens patrol duty with the local CB club. His wife spends her spare time sewing and working on ceramics.

HERO!

Boy, 8, saves baby

By SUE BACHAND
ANP Staff Writer

Someone once said that the mark of a real hero is not the absence of fear, but the deed performed in spite of the fear present.

If that is true, then Eric Linsea of Canton Township is a hero indeed. Eric and his family were visiting an aunt in Northville Sunday who resides near a man-made private lake. Warne Linsea, Eric's father, and his grandmother were paddling in a canoe and the rest of the family, including Eric's 18-month old nephew Derrick Fella, were fishing on the lake shore.

While the family members fished and visited, Eric heard a splash and what sounded to him, he says, "like bubbles coming up." Looking over, the 8-year old realized that tiny Derrick had fallen into the water which was far over the baby's head.

Forgetting that he is a little afraid of deep water and not a very good swimmer, Eric jumped into the lake and unceremoniously yanked his cousin from the water. The squalling and crying Derrick, along with some spluttering by both boys, attracted the immediate attention of the adults who absolutely credit Eric with saving his cousin's life.

"They were only about 10 or 15 feet from the baby, but they just didn't hear him or notice him approach the water's edge," noted Linsea. "The baby didn't make any noise when he went in, other than the splashing, he must have been in shock," the proud

"I was a little bit scared," Eric admitted, "Yeah, I guess I was pretty scared. I have a little brother, though, so I know about babies," the hero added.

Eric is in the third grade at Walker School and some of the other students have already heard of his heroic deeds. "They just said stuff like, 'y'know, 'nice goin' and 'congratulations' and stuff," he said.

"I'm still afraid of deep water, but if it happened again, yeah, I'd still go in after him."

Asked if Derrick was special to him, Eric responded that the baby is, "just a cousin, you know." The hero has been promised a new 10-speed bike as a reward for his quick thinking by his proud parents.

But there is one sad note to the heroic tale—Eric didn't catch any fish, only a cousin.

Road care may be decided by a vote of the residents

By SUE BACHAND
ANP Staff Writer

If all goes as planned, voters in Canton Township will have the opportunity to take action on the condition of local roads when they go to the polls in August.

Acting on a lengthy report and recommendation of a citizens study committee on road maintenance and improvements in the township, board members agreed Tuesday evening to place the proposals of the committee on a preliminary ballot for voter approval at the August primary. Township attorneys were instructed to begin preparation of proper proposal language asking the taxpayers to approve a 1 mill assessment for maintenance of township roads which would include grading, snow plowing, including sanding during winter months, dust control, signs, drainage, patching and sealing; roadside maintenance including shoulders, fencing, guardrails, trees and shrubs and administration. The 1 mill levy would provide a township budget of $750,000 per year for such care and the committee has suggested that this money be provided for a 10-year period of time with an option for voters to renew at the end of that time.

Further, the committee has suggested another 1 mill assessment for roadway improvements to last for 5 years with an option of the voters to renew at the end of that approved time period. An improvement millage over the next five years should generate, according to the committee report, nearly $2.5 to $3 million. With this money, along with revenue from gas and weight tax from Wayne County, the township should attempt to pave Warren from Beck to Lilley, Palmer from Haggerty to Canton Center, Sheldon, south of Cherry Hill, Sheldon, north of Palmer, Lilley south of Cherry Hill and Haggerty, from Cherry Hill to Palmer. The paving recommended would cost, according to committee figures, $2,762,500.

The committee further recommended the inclusion of Canton

Township in several Wayne County programs which might provide lower cost buying for supplies, dust palliative calcium chloride for example in the maintenance phase of the program.

The paving proposed would be of an asphalt-concrete substance and would remove the roads from the jurisdiction of Wayne County—a step favored by some members of the board including Supervisor James Poole.

"When I look at the county program and see that $75 of every $100 is overhead—I feel something is wrong," he said.

A unique homeseller financing program

—High interest rates have forced many area home sellers and buyers to look beyond traditional mortgage lending for "creative financing" solutions to affordable housing. Until now, however, such financing arrangements were risky—there were no programs available to protect the seller against the inherent dangers of buyer default.

To meet that need, Mortgage Guaranty Insurance Corporation (MGIC), the nation's oldest and largest private mortgage insurance company, and Ann Arbor Mortgage Corporation are introducing a special insurance program designed to safeguard sellers against financial loss and to encourage them to obtain professional mortgage servicing.

"Today, six out of every ten home resales involve some form of seller-financing offered at below market rates," said George B. Smith, President of Ann Arbor Mortgage Corporation. "Yet, the seller's investment is not always secure—more financing deals are ending in foreclosure and often, the land contracts or mortgages may not be legally enforceable."

Under MGIC's and Ann Arbor Mortgage Corporation's Homeseller program, seller protection in financing the sale of a home is provided by mortgage guaranty insurance—traditionally offered only to mortgage lenders to protect funds lent to borrowers. This default protection insures a portion of the seller's loan to cover usually 20 to 30 percent of the unpaid principal balance, plus the costs normally associated with foreclosure.

According to Smith, the insurance is available for those loans where the seller is the lienholder. The seller can select the amount of protection desired to safeguard the financing instrument, which can be a first or second mortgage or land contract. The use of alternative mortgage instruments is acceptable, but payments of balloon mortgages at the end of term are not covered unless the seller offers the buyer an opportunity to renew or refinance the loan at prevailing market rates.

The standard 20% coverage on a 90% loan-to-value ratio loan (that is, one with a 10% cash downpayment) can be obtained for one-half percent of the mortgage amount for the first year—and one-quarter percent each year thereafter. And normally, premiums for mortgage guaranty insurance are included in the buyer's monthly payment.

Seller-financiers may obtain Homeseller protection through Ann Arbor Mortgage Corporation, an MGIC-approved lending institution. The seller's loan must be originated, underwritten and serviced by Ann Arbor Mortgage Corporation, a FNMA, FHA & HUD approved mortgagee.

"Sellers are often burdened with administrative and servicing aspects of making such loans," explained Smith. "In addition, when default occurs, additional expenses are incurred since the seller has complicated court and legal collection costs."

By offering the program through Ann Arbor Mortgage Corporation, MGIC is working to assure the legality and proper recording of the loan instrument. The Ann Arbor Mortgage Corporation will evaluate the creditworthiness of the buyer and prepare all required loan documentation, and be responsible for assuring receipt of monthly payments by managing collections and disbursing the funds accordingly with an accounting of interest and principal payments, along with issuing periodic reports and financial statements to the home seller.

If the buyer is delinquent, the Ann Arbor Mortgage Corporation's collection personnel will step in to collect past due payments on behalf of the seller, and in the event of buyer default, will handle all details of the foreclosure and see that the insurance claim is properly settled.

Smith noted that a servicing agreement between the seller and Ann Arbor Mortgage Corporation will be used to outline the responsibilities of each party involved. Origination and servicing fees are negotiated with the home seller and buyer, and are typically included in the interest rate paid by the buyer.

"The benefits of safeguarding the loan and tapping the resources of professional mortgage personnel cannot be underestimated in today's uncertain market. As sellers realize the many risks involved in financing the sale of a home, they will need an assured way of protecting their largest financial asset," Smith concluded.

GEORGE B. SMITH

5 percent decrease proposed

County may roll back taxes

Asserting that city and township officials are turning a deaf ear to the pleas of local taxpayers, Wayne County Commissioner William Runco today said he will recommend a 5 percent county-wide rollback of property assessments when the full board meets to consider recommendations May 6.

"Although citizens visited their Boards of Review in record numbers to protest their tax assessments this year, 30 of 36 communities have thus far either refused to file a protest or, if they did, indicated they would not appeal a negative ruling," the Commissioner pointed out.

"We must follow the law," Runco said. "We can't allow property to be assessed beyond the 50 percent limitation established by State Statutes and if the community leaders are not willing to face this fact, then it will be up to us—it's as simple as that."

Runco added that if other members of the committee do not agree to his across-the-board rollback of 5 percent, then he would take his fight to the floor of the full board at the May 6th session.

"Taxpayers swamped their local Boards of Review demanding cuts in an unprecedented number this year," Runco said. "In one case," he explained, "there were 119 protests in 1981, this year more than 2,100 turned out. In another community the number leaped from 200 to 2,800. How can these people go unnoticed?"

"It's obvious to me something is wrong and until a proper remedy can be found, I see no reason why my recommended 5 percent across-the-board rollback should not be implemented."

George McEachran, County Director of the Bureau of Taxation, told committee members last week that each governmental unit could, as an alternative to assessment rollbacks, provide its own individual property tax relief by reducing its millage rate to compensate for possible over-assessments.

Other committee members include its Chairman, Commissioner Paul G. Citkowski, and Commissioners Samuel A. Turner, Chairman of the Board; and Clemens E. Bykowski, Board Vice Chairman. The committee will conduct its final hearing Monday at 10 a.m. for the communities of Plymouth Township, Westland, Canton Township, Dearborn Heights, Grosse Ile and Romulus.

Our Opinions

Reagan's economics — why it's all wrong

If all the President's good men would only listen and not twist arms, we may bring this country back from its worst depression in history.

Reaganomics doesn't work. And the huge lines waiting for unemployment benefits are living proof.

The Reagan budget calls for heavy defense spending and reduced taxes. This results in a huge deficit approaching 5 percent of the annual gross national product. The government is forced to borrow heavily to cover the deficit.

This heavy borrowing drives up interest rates, already high. High ticket sales, already currently depressed will probably drop like a stone. Commerce in real estate, construction, autos, auto suppliers, steel, refrigerators and civilian aircraft, already in a tailspin, will dive if not crash. Heavy business borrowers like airlines, railroads, will suffer even more because of the necessity of charging higher rates to cover increased interest costs.

Banks and savings and loan institutions, currently bleeding scores of billions in deposits to more competitive money funds, and already caught in a disastrous interest squeeze, and sitting on scores of billions of bad loans to developing nations, could face collapse with continued high interest rates, let alone further increased rates. The merging of these institutions is already happening. They may start folding soon, and in large numbers.

The reduction of these industries and businesses will force more unemployment, already high. This will create demand for increased government spending for welfare and unemployment compensation.

The President may be tempted to cover part of the deficit by printing money, or doing the equivalent, taking credits at the Federal Reserve. Printing money, or the equivalent, based solely on the credit of the Federal Government, will directly increase the money supply, and consequently, according to Reagan's economic guru, Milton Friedman, directly accelerate inflation.

If Reagan does this in a short period of time, as he will be tempted to do, he will invite hyperinflation. It is possible that the country might simultaneously experience economic depression, high unemployment, high interest rates, and a currently debased by hyperinflation. The depression is only beginning. Higher unemployment is a virtual certainty. Higher interest rates within the next year can be expected. Destruction of credit by hyperinflation is a dangerous possibility.

The current budget battle between Reagan and the Congress will likely be resolved by a slight decrease in government domestic spending, a slight decrease in defense spending, a slight increase in taxes, and a slight decrease in the Federal budget deficit. In other words, window dressing. Hard choices on what is necessary and what isn't necessary for adequate defense will be avoided by both Reagan and Congress. Reagan might even continue to argue that the Russians will invade Manhattan if we don't refloat several old battleships at a billion dollars apiece.

Reagan has blundered into a depression that will probably elect Ted Kennedy in 1984. Reagan will be tempted to save his political chestnuts by an adventurous war in some remote backwater like El Salvador. His military and diplomatic genius, as recently shown in the Falklands operetta, is comparable to his economic talent.

Mr. President, it's time to listen to the other people. Your side has proven to be wrong. Ask any auto, steel, real estate man or woman in Michigan.

The Hillenbrand Report

Crisis relocation --- a paper shell?

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the second and concluding series of the "Crisis relocation—a paper shell" written by Bernard Hillenbrand, who has served as executive director of the National Association of Counties and its Research Foundation. He is founder and editor of County News, a weekly Washington D.C. newspaper reporting the effects of legislation, regulation and judicial decisions on local government. Hillenbrand holds an M.A. in public administration from the Maxwell School of Public Administration, Syracuse University.)

Now let's hear from William E. Murrey, civil defense director in Cascade County (Great Falls), Mont. In the midst of the Minuteman missile complex, during emergencies half its surviving population is to head for Flathead County 165 miles away. Here are just a few impediments:

— North Central Montana residents must travel through 50 miles of missile fields.

— One hundred thousand citizens would go over a mountain pass.

— Mass transit doesn't exist.

— Gas stations are 40 miles apart.

— There's no shelter in the host county.

— The host county is a major recipient of particulate matter from the West Coast, a fact demonstrated during Mount St. Helen's eruption.

After seven years of research,

Murray knows how many buses he needs—but can locate only half. He knows where to spot petroleum trucks for refueling and how to route delivery trucks. Yet his county still has no emergency operation center. He also worries about snow removal should Russia be so rude as to interrupt his six-month winter.

The Russians already have an extensive civil defense network. "They spend $2.5 billion a year on it," says FEMA Associate Director Lee Thomas. "They are far ahead of us." Thomas is among FEMA officials who believe poor preparation might lull our enemies into thinking they could win a nuclear exchange simply because more of their population would survive. "If you have the capability—then you have a strong deterrent to war," Thomas says.

"Federal officials are content to merely look at theories," Murray complains. "We at the local level must examine the nuts and bolts. And the problems are mind-boggling. We have to deal with 'minor details,' such as the couple who refuse to leave their dog behind."

And what about the criminals locked up in county jails?

Ultimately, local government officials like Murray—in places like Great Falls and Moscow—would have to make the God-like decision: Who gets saved?

Counties desperately need federal help planning crisis management, and obtaining supplies. Vital components of peacetime civil defense include fortification and identification of emergency shelter, medical facilities and transportation planning. Alternate food stocks, water purification and energy resources should be considered.

I also support FEMA's efforts to print emergency instructions and escape plans in every telephone directory.

As a nation, we must have FEMA's new emergency telecommunications system. The present one is antiquated. Some of it lies rusting in the basements of the same rural county courthouses that would host future crisis.

Emergency planning is not unreasonable. Civil defense can save lives in peacetime. Adequate preparation will never be a justification for nuclear war because life afterwards would greet no place worth living.

Older Americans — they earned their respect

EDITOR — When you say "Older Americans," you're using a positive and resourceful phrase. Today more and more citizens are looking upon older Americans as a positive and valuable part of society.

They are a part of society that has given, and continues to make, great contributions. In return we must give them services that are commensurate with these contributions. The Governor and the Office of Services to the Aging, the state agency mandated to advocate on behalf of older people, are observing Older Americans Month in May. This is a time for reexamining our attitudes toward older Americans and considering the valuable years they have given in enhancing our society.

In Michigan, there are over 1.3 million citizens age 60 and over; a 20 percent increase over the last ten years. This growth is almost five times faster than that of the total population for the same period. Over 355,000 people are 75 years old or older. This is an extra special age group because many of them need more care than others, simply because of their disabilities and illnesses. By 1990, citizens 60 years and older are expected to increase by over 346,000. As you can see, this group is not getting any smaller.

Issues such as transportation, housing, health care and social security must be dealt with effectively. We must make the future a positive horizon full of harmonious interactions between older citizens and other age groups. If senior citizens are treated as they deserve to be treated, in turn they will be able to contribute even more of their valuable skills to their communities.

Older Americans Month is more than a slogan. Yes, it's a time to closely scrutinize the quality of life for the elderly in Michigan, but it should also be a time to recognize the impact of our elders upon us throughout the year.

Older Americans are our past, present, and future. We cannot neglect them lest we ourselves choose not to look to the future.

On opinions and statements

EDITOR — Many thanks to the good people of Wayne for their support of the Wayne Lions Club White Cane Week.

As you may know this is an annual fundraising event. Monies collected are given to organizations such as Leader Dog, Rochester, Mich., Penrickton School for the Handicapped, the local FISH program, two local scholarships, and other deserving charities.

In addition, the Wayne Lions Club provides glasses for individuals who are unable to afford eye care services.

Wasn't it the philosopher William James who said that the chief value of life is that you do something that outlasts yours?

One could get mildly nauseated when one reads the paper and learns that major corporations get away from paying their fair share while the "average American" must depart with more than 30 to 40 percent of his paycheck.

But, again, one must feel fortunate that he is still employed.

However, there is a natural patriotism in most of us. We do it because the government tells us to do it. That WAS patriotism, wasn't it?

But if one would pause and read the piles of press releases crossing this desk nowadays, you'd soon realize that something is brewing. The property owners, the virtuosos paying the bills, are disenchanted; small business is going out of business and the largest corporations are begging their employees for concessions—something unheard of in the history of this country.

One reader even urged me to ask our elected officials in Washington and Lansing to make some concessions to the public. "Why don't they cut their paychecks by 10 percent, just like the auto workers did?" this smartalecky reader wrote.

Most of us are ready to abandon ship, realizing that there are no lifeboats to carry us through and over the icy fiscal waters.

Then there was this accountant who mailed me a copy of a "United States Internal Revenue income tax form", circa 1865 - that's no typo, sirs, 1865. And he pointed out that the form was a one page deal and the IRS collected taxes on - now get this - "billiard tables, kept for private use; carriages, valuation over $50 and not over $100; pianofortes, gold watches, silver plate and gold plate."

Now you must remember that 1865 was a war year. The North was just winding down and sending back the Rebels from whence they came.

And do you know how much the gentleman paid in taxes, according to the certificate? A hefty $75.

Who said the good old days were good?

Now back to William James. Is there a man or woman out there who can lead this nation back to respectability? A man or woman who can put our people back in the employment lines and not in the dole lines? Who can even produce a feeble light of hope?

Oh, how eagerly we wait for 1984.

Fishermen who disobey laws

EDITOR — Before warm weather brings fishermen out to line our bridges, fill public and private parking areas, interfere with traffic, and unduly burden the respective police departments, please develop plans to permanently resolve this problem we have had in the past in Van Buren and Belleville.

Residents of Van Buren Township firmly voted to disallow fishing from bridges on the public right-of-way as unsafe, unsightly, and unsanitary.

If current legislation does not provide an adequate deterrent, or for some reason is difficult to support, enact legislation which is effective.

Warning signs should be repaired or replaced and possibly fences restricting access could be erected.

Huck Finn was 'whale of derby'

EDITOR — I would like to take this opportunity to thank the City of Wayne; the Wayne Department of Parks and Recreation, and the Wayne Jaycees for their sponsorship and participation in the annual Huck Finn Fishing Derby.

My daughter and I found the recreational personnel and the many volunteers, who assisted the young fishermen, very courteous and helpful.

My six-year-old daughter didn't win the prize for the biggest fish, but the happiness and excitement she showed, when she caught her "whale" will always be remembered.

In these times of financial crisis, it's nice to live in Wayne where everyone can partake in an experience that will always be remembered, at a cost that everyone can afford. Once again, a BIG THANK YOU to all those who made it possible.

SRO at Westland council meetings

EDITOR — Since January, the Westland City Council meetings have been filled to Standing Room Only capacity with the citizens of Westland. The residents are letting the new mayor (Charles Pickering) and old council know what they want.

You would think that the residents who are the city would have a lot of weight with our elected officials. Right? Well, when it comes to a vote of the council - the Magnificent 5 -

Charles Griffin, Robert Wagner, Kenneth Mehl, Thomas Artley and Justine Barnes, have marched to a different drummer - or it would appear so.

Two of them, (Mr. Griffin and Mr. Mehl) have said, in response to the fact that the people have come out in droves to express their wishes to the council, that they have received a lot of letters in support of what they are going to do.

Now, I have no way of knowing just how many letters they received, if any, or from whom.

So, I thought if you good people here in Westland would like to know, we can sure find out. All you have to do is sit down and write a letter. I know that times are tough, but I do think the cost of stamps would be well worth it to have your voice heard.

So, if you disapprove of the actions of Mr. Griffin, Mr. Wagner, Mr. Mehl, Mr. Artley, and Mrs. Barnes; then sit down and write each one of them a letter and let them know. Address it to them and send it to 36601 Ford Rd., Westland, Michigan, 48185. And if you approve of what Mayor Pickering is trying to do, then write him a letter of support and send it to him at the same address.

Then, we will be able to see just how many disapprove of the 5 councilmen, and what they are doing, and how many approve of what Mayor Pickering is trying to do for the city. So, please sit down and write those letters, so there will be no mistake in what, "we the people" think.

March of Dimes lauds ANP staffer

EDITOR — We would like to thank ANP staff writer Sue Bachand for the fine profile on Cindy Miller, the inspirational young Wayne woman who has raised thousands of dollars to fight birth defects via March of Dimes WalkAmerica.

It is always gratifying to see a volunteer such as Cindy receive recognition for the fantastic job she has done.

Organizations such as the March of Dimes depend heavily on uncommon persons like Cindy to help the 250,000 babies born each year with birth defects by raising funds for medical research, community service projects and educational grants.

The reduction of federal funding will force us to rely even more heavily on individuals such as Cindy.

Mrs. Bachand's article no doubt will encourage others to follow Cindy's example and catch the volunteer spirit. Again, our deepest appreciation.

Wayne is on right track

EDITOR — I was privileged to be in attendance at the Wayne City Council meeting on April 20, when the very innovative method of upgrading the Business District was discussed. You had to be proud of Mayor Patrick Norton and the majority of the Council. It was obvious they had put many hours into the project. They know what must be done and they are doing something about it.

It is almost impossible to have a city that people want to live in, where services are good and property values are maintained unless you have a successful business area. Example: A comparable home in Plymouth will sell for much more than a home in Wayne. Take a look at the Business District in Plymouth and you will find it very healthy and the City is constantly working to keep it that way. Plymouth didn't always look the way it does today.

Sure seems a shame that with Mayor Norton and five other members of the Council showing such great leadership and courage, the Councilman who gets his picture on the front page of your paper is the one trying to delay the project. It is a sign of the times, for today it is more popular to be negative than to be positive.

Councilman Kurt Heidman's remarks about continued maintenance cost are just not valid. If we took this attitude, there would be no paved streets and there would be no schools.

As the Mayor so eloquently put it, "There is no such thing as a free lunch."

The entire City should get behind the Mayor and the majority of the Council and support their efforts.

On religious freedoms

EDITOR — Does ANP columnist Joyce Hagelthorn value her religious freedom? I am certain that you find that question ludicrous. Yet you and many people like you would endanger this freedom for what you consider just expression of your religion.

The separation of church and state was written into the United States Constitution to protect all of us from having to support a religion not of our choosing. Since that was written into the Constitution many religious groups have attacked and eroded it in the name of religious freedom.

If prayers of any religion or the religious works of any religion can be legally forced on the general public then we no longer have religious freedom.

A good example of this would be in a case where a religious cult has become the majority in an area. They vote to have their cult beliefs taught in the schools. Their cult ceremonies performed in public places. Their cult dress code for all public functions.

The general public would be further forced to furnish free of charge fire and police protection for such a cult thru the religious tax exemption of the cults property.

If you will look to your own heart at what you value most about your religion, then ask yourself how much you would value that if it was a matter of law? I believe that then you will see what I am talking about. Madeleine Murray O'Hair is a real pain in the neck.

She forces us to look at ourselves and our beliefs totally naked of any of the faith that supports them. If your beliefs can survive that then you indeed have something that you should cherish. Then thank God for Mrs. O'Hair and people like her. They protect us against those who would outlaw our beliefs to be replaced by what they believe.

Didn't mean to sign petition

EDITOR — As a resident of Van Buren Township, I am very upset. I came walking out of a store one day and a man came up to me and asked me to sign something "for" Pat Cullin, the township's supervisor.

Being a strong supporter of Mrs. Cullin for many years, I didn't think twice about signing something for her and some other board members. I feel she has done an outstanding job in leading our community. Through my own error, which I feel badly about, I did not read the petition as I was in a hurry for an appointment.

Needless to say, I was flabbergasted that I actually signed a petition for her removal from office! I don't feel that I was totally to blame because I was led to believe that I was signing something in support of Pat.

I'm just glad that I'll have the opportunity to reverse that error in an election. But I feel those people deceived me and I certainly couldn't believe anything they would have to say.

Good secretaries are assets

EDITOR — After reading Mona Grigg's article "Take a letter—obsolete?" in the April 21 & 22, 1982 issue of the Romulus Roman, I felt compelled to write this letter to address some of Ms. Grigg's comments.

First of all, she asks "can we talk a little about shorthand?" Well, there is no "we" talking, only herself and even then it is only her slanted opinions and ideas. It wasn't just a "little" about shorthand that she spoke; it was quite a lot and every bit of it was devastating to any secretary who is worth his or her salt.

Had Ms. Grigg spent more than the four days on learning the skill of shorthand that she mentions in her article, she would know just how valuable a stenographic secretary can be. She states that she wished she had tried harder. Why? When she advocates employing machines instead. Wouldn't that be great for the economy?

One can type from one's dictation notes as quickly or even quicker than from a tape recorder, especially when you have to watch out for the employer's change of mind on certain words or phrases, which may not show up until two or three paragraphs later. With shorthand, you merely have to strike it out and go on from there. With stenographer, you don't have to worry about dead batteries or the tape being accidentally erased or some other malfunction of the recorder. Phone messages are not transcribed, a phone number in shorthand is taken down no differently than normal with the rest of the message given verbally.

The short, informal poll Ms. Grigg mentions she had taken of a total of six secretaries was short, indeed. Six secretaries out of the thousands and thousands of secretaries that exist is hardly what I would call a "poll" informal or otherwise.

When one takes a job as someone else's secretary, to be at that person's beck and call with regard to office duties is part of the job. That is what you're getting paid for. I don't get paid to do what I want to do, I get paid for what the boss wants done and how he wants it done.

Most secretaries like to feel that they are an asset to the company or business. Good secretaries are an asset and should be proud of it. I worked hard at learning my skill. I spent a lot of time and years becoming the best that I could be at what I do, and now, Ms. Grigg comes along (on Secretaries Week, no less!!) and tells me that I wasted all that time, all that effort, and all these years because I'm nothing more than a tool by which to satisfy someone else's ego and that I am as old fashioned as an A-OO-gah car horn.

Ms. Grigg has delivered an unqualified blow not only to past and current stenographic secretaries, but has done a great disservice, motivationally speaking, to students who may have chosen to go into this profession. She has made some very cruel and unjustified remarks about a topic that she obviously knows nothing about.

I can only assume, should your newspaper be in agreement with its writers' objectives, which is to say, crushing a person through patterns regarding ones career and livelihood, that Associated Newspapers does not employ any stenographers and, if so, what do you and the various other heads of departments do to satisfy their egos?

Reflections

Man and his honest dog

HEMET, CALIF. — Last year when I was here during the last days of my brother-in-law, I met Buck. Buck was a friend of my brother-in-law, and often came to give his dying friend a great deal of loving help.

And Buck had a lot to give, for Buck had been an alcoholic and when he had at last reached the "pits" (his own words) he had been driving away from an anniversary party, away from his wife of 25 years, away from his friends and family, towards a bar where he knew his great, overwhelming desire for a drink would be satisfied. His hands tight on the steering wheel, his conscience prodding him, the sweat pouring down his forehead, he had cried out to God for God to take this "thing" away from him. He had cried out for God to give him a sign if there were a God in the heavens.

And as he rounded a curve, before him arose a great highway sign, with the words, "Acknowledge me in all ways..." It was his sign. There was a God in heaven. And he turned in the middle of the road and went home. And has never touched a drop since.

A few nights ago we had dinner at Buck's home. His wife, Mary, had prepared a great meal, and they welcomed us into their cozy home, where warmth and sunshine prevailed, even though outside the skies were crying and angry clouds were rolling across the heavens.

Buck was in fine form.

We talked of many things, and one of the things we talked about was honesty.

"Now a dog is honest," Buck said, leaning back in his chair, his rosy cheeks shining in the glow of the lamp, his white hair glistening. He has gained some weight since last year, Buck has, but somehow the great belly added to what one felt in the man, the reaching out, the joy of living.

"I'll tell you a story," Buck continued, "which will show you how I know a dog is honest. It was a long time ago when Mary and me were living out beyond those hills there. And sometimes a deer would wander down from the mountains. One day I took my dog, who was always with me, and we went out to this little watering hole in the cactus there, and there stood a deer, just as pretty as it could be. It lifted its head and looked at us, and it didn't bound away, which was a big mistake on its part. Becuz something in me rared up and made me bring up my rifle. It was probably becuz we hadn't had meat for a long time, we were so poor. Whatever it was, it made me take aim at that poor, trusting deer and fire. And I caught him. He just coupled right up there in that old watering hole. Soon's I done it I knew I hadn't ought to have done it. Mainly because it was out of season and if I got caught we would be poorer than we was.

I dragged that deer home, that old dog right at my side, and I skinned it and cut the meat off, that old dog watching every motion I made. Mary, there, was hollering.

"What you doing to do with the carcass," she kept crying. "What if you get caught."

"Well," I told her, "I don't aim to get caught."

"I finally finished putting away the meat, and then I took the carcass, along with its head and I threw it in my pickup truck and I drove way out on the desert, where I figgered I would bury it so's no one would ever know. That old dog was right along side of me.

"After I finished my job I climbed back into my pickup, that old dog jumping right up there on the seat, and I headed back home. I told Mary, there, that everything was all right, and we would have plenty of meat for some time. But I did feel a mite guilty about it, that deer being so trusting, just standing there in that watering hole and looking at me, but, then, I was young, and I figgered it was meant to be, since we could of gotten pretty hungry without it.

"Mary kept worrying and worrying about someone finding out and reporting us to the law, and sure enough a few days later here came a lawman driving up to our cabin. Mary let out one squeal and scurried into the bedroom, but I figgered since he seen the smoke coming out of the chimney he must know someone was home. I couldn't figger out how he knew about the deer, and I was plenty sweaty. I'll tell you.

"I called to my dog, but he didn't come. I whistled again, but still no dog. By that time the lawman was at the door. Well, it wasn't nuthin, but that he wanted a drink of water, and I was sure feeling pretty easy when I looked out the window and there that old dog was coming through the cactus, pulling behind him that deer's head. And he brought it up and laid it right at my feet, his tail a-wagging. I could have kicked that son-of-a-gun. The sweat broke out all over my body and I didn't know but what I was going to faint. I thought that lawman was going to take me in for sure, but he just looked down at that old tail-wagging dog and said, 'Well, look what that old dog has dug up. There's been some poacher at work hereabouts, I spect.' And he crawled back in his car and drove away.

"And you know, I think that blamed dog was kind of disappointed."

lieve it.

Tomato juice apparently works. Four big cans of it went onto Kimba's coat, along with warm, soapy vinegar water and a baking soda paste.

(A word of warning about the baking soda paste. As you are applying it, think about what any self-respecting dog would do if he were forced to wear a coat of baking soda paste. He would try to shake it off. Do it outdoors. There were even flecks of baking soda on the ceiling.)

Ditto, come to think of it, for the tomato juice. Although no self-respecting dog owner would ever let that dog inside until steps one and two had been taken. (The tomato juice and warm, soapy vinegar bath.)

And finally, never think that the dog had learned his lesson. Someone told me that for seven summers now their dog has had a run-in with a skunk.

Ah, well. Semper fidelis and sic transit nausum.

When dog meets skunk

When I began writing this column well over a year ago, I promised myself there would be two things that would be absolutely inviolate: I would never mention my children by name (or even by number), and I would never write about things that had happened to them without disguising and fictionalizing the incident so as to be virtually unrecognizable even to the person involved.

And so far I've kept my promise. I haven't done either of those things. However, when it came to the dog (Kimba, by name) I never promised a thing.

So it is with a clear conscience that I write this — and if Kimba threatens to sue, I'll remind him that it was me who stood before a certain local judge and repeated at length the many virtues of a certain canine lothario, thus avoiding the imposition of an almost certain $500 fine for allowing my dog to roam free and without restraints, or something. (I tried to explain that I certainly would never allow my dog to roam free; that he insisted on roaming free by racing past and knocking down innocent children as they unwittingly opened the door.)

Of course, that is all past his tory and pre-neuterization, so let's hope it won't be necessary to bring it up again.

Kimba, to be fair, makes up in good looks (though some say the steam-shovel underbite detracts) and charm what he lacks in common sense.

He can turn on the sad eyes faster than I can say, "What did you do now?"

He can stand on his hind legs and dance longer and more gracefully than I can.

And he can be (and is) more loyal than any human being I've ever known.

He loves everybody and he thinks everybody loves him. He even thinks the dogcatcher loves him, and even after all this time, still thinks he's going to party whenever he's invited into the paddy wagon.

He thinks Gypsy, the guinea pig loves him—and maybe she does, because when Kimba sticks his nose into her cage, she almost never bites him.

So it stood to reason that Kimba the innocent would think a skunk would love him, too.

It happened over Easter vacation, when we were at our cabin in the woods. There, where Kimba can roam free and without restraints after being cooped up in a ¾ acre yard, the freedom is almost too much for him.

For the first hour or two, he never stops running. He runs round and round the cabin in ever-widening circles until finally something catches his interest in the underbrush.

I can only guess, but the something that caught his interest this time must have looked a lot like a guinea pig to him. He wandered right up to it and tried to sniff it's nose—just like he does Gypsy's. Only this little Gypsy turned tail and sprayed him—right in his trusting little face.

From a short distance away we had seen it happen, and it was a real temptation to turn around and run the other way—but it never would have worked. We were knee-deep in snow and Kimba, besides having those ridiculous sad eyes, is a born follower and a great long-distance runner.

He also had a knack, we discovered, for staying upwind of us, no matter which path we chose. But to make a long story short, let me just tell you that all those stories you've heard about what happens when skunk meets dog are true:

It smells a lot worse than when skunk meets car, if you can be-

Lou Reed's finest hour is here

LOU REED
"The Blue Mask"
(RCA)

I first sat down to review "The Blue Mask" about five weeks ago, and for my time ended up with nothing more than a formidable collection of crumpled-up pieces of typing paper.

Something bothered me, and it went along these lines: Lou Reed is, without a doubt, a legendary figure in rock. His work as founder of the Velvet Underground is well documented (but if you want to find out for yourself, check out "The Velvet Underground And Nico," recently reissued at a discounted price), and his solo work during the seventies is familiar to all, even if only through the nearly perverse "Walk On The Wild Side" and the dredge he called "Sally Can't Dance," the latter the title of his worst, and, naturally, best-selling album.

Luckily, the peaks far outweighed the low spots, and Lou Reed walked head-held high into the eighties. My problem was, was "The Blue Mask" as good as it seemed, or was I bowing a bit to the legend? Without a doubt, it IS that good.

Newly domesticated, Lou Reed has surprised a lot of people lately. He's been married (happily!) for a few years now. To a woman! This from the ex-junkie who used to live with and travel with a transvestite? This man who six years ago, if you looked up the word "decadence" in the dictionary, you'd have found his picture, this is the man who sings

"I'm just your Average Guy Trying to do what's right."

And he means it too.

Of course, all of this pseudo-socializing wouldn't mean a thing usually, but as stated before, Lou Reed is no johnny-come-lately, but rather an artist that has always made a point to bare his soul and emotions in song. Each new Reed album is like an old friend you haven't seen in a while, sometimes happy, sometimes aggravating, but always nice to hear from.

Lyrical wit comes to the forefront in "Underneath The Bottle," as well as some hard hitting facts that are only too true. "Things go from bad to weird" he sings, and recites:

"Oohh Whee

Look at me

Looking for some sympathy

It's the same old story

Of man and his search for glory

And he found it, there underneath the bottle"

He concludes the song with a vicious right, telling us, or perhaps confessing to us, that:

"I lost my pride and it's hiding

There underneath the bottle"

"My House" is the story of Lou and his wife Sylvia's discovery through an Ouiji Board of his old friend, the late poet Delmore Schwartz, who died in 1966.

Musically, "The Blue Mask" is Reed's finest hour, as he's finally put together a band equal to the task of unraveling his tunes without bombarding them, as guitarists Hunter and Wagner did on "Rock 'N' Roll Animal" some years back. As a matter of fact, Lou's new axeman, Robert Quine, is getting a lot of press calling him the best new guitarist to emerge in years.

So, if you're already a Lou Reed fan, don't waste another minute—go get this LP now. And, if you're not already a fan, go get it anyway. Both him and you deserve it.

'Chapter Two' succeeds due to strong performances

By DENNIS NIEMIEC
Feature Editor

Many theatrical groups have attempted to do justice to Neil Simon's autobiographical comedy, "Chapter Two."

At its best, "Chapter Two" rates as a fast-moving adventure into the world of relationships and match-making. The script combines witty dialogue with a touch of personal bereavement en route to the proverbial happy ending.

At its worst, this play can be nothing more than another version of boy-meets-girl, boy-gets-girl and boy-and-girl have problems.

Fortunately for the audience at a recent Saturday performance by the Komedie Players Dinner Theatre in Allen Park, the cast knew how effective "Chapter Two" can be.

And that's vital to the success of this Simon piece, since it's the cast that makes or breaks "Chapter Two". The gags simply are not THAT funny nor are the lines THAT clever so as to be entertaining by their very nature.

Delivery and facial expressions make the difference here. Jan Salisbury as the divorcee Jennie and Bill Moore as the widower George breathe life into their characters, comfortable in both funny situations and moments of strife and inner conflict.

Del Howison as Leo, George's protective brother, and Judi Charters as Faye, Jennie's crazy friend, steal the show at times with the intensity they put into their roles.

7 p.m. — 9 p.m. ADVANCED CAKE DECORATING — $20 per person at Van Buren Township Hall. New session started March 22.

Credit these professional performers as well as Director William Salisbury as the reasons for an extended run of "Chapter Two" on Friday and Saturday evenings through May 22 at Bambi's Welcome Mat, 5835 Allen Road, one block north of Southfield. After an eight-week run, this dinner theatre package is still going strong.

In the first offering of the Komedie Players Dinner Theatre some months back — "My Heart Reminds Me" — Salisbury and Moore wasted their considerable talents on a script dipped in boredom. Given the style of Simon, those talents are properly displayed this time around.

The two New York apartments, which form the setting for all the action, come alive time after time through characters that only a Simon could create.

For those unfamiliar with what Variety has termed "Neil Simon's best play to date," this play is an autobiographical account of Simon's remarriage only months after the death of his beloved first wife.

George is still emerging from his bereavement when he is introduced to Jennie, an actress also in the throes of a painful separation. Their initial telephone conversation rates as quality Simon, and sets the pace for what will be several scenes charged with emotion.

A zany sub-plot finds Leo (Howison) having a fling with Faye (Charters), in what ranks as the most hilarious part of the production. Howison makes sure that Leo rightfully keeps the audience in stitches.

Tickets for the dinner and show are priced at $12.95 on Fridays and $14.95 on Saturdays with reservations accepted by calling 661-1383. Dinner is served at 7:30 p.m.

Alexander the Great

Barbecue ribs, special prices keep diners coming back

By DENNIS NIEMIEC
Feature Editor

The best barbecued ribs in the area?

Here's one vote for the juicy variety with the special-homemade sauce served at Alexander the Great, 34733 Warren near Wayne Road in Westland.

Obviously a great number of diners feel the same way since Alexander the Great sells between 2,000 and 3,000 pounds of ribs each week, according to owners Walter Stevanovich and Tom Tomovski.

And with the dinner-for-two special, a whole slab of ribs (14 bones), priced at $9.95, the cost would be difficult to beat even in the supermarket. Dinners also include choice of potatoes, salad or cole slaw and assorted breads for two persons.

Little wonder then, that an estimated 80 percent of those who visit this family dining spot order barbecued ribs or a combination plate of ribs with chicken or shrimp.

"When I was 10-years-old my grandfather (Stanley) would barbecue ribs for the family in Macedonia," recalled Stevanovich, who opened Alexander the Great in 1977.

"I learned the special sauce and the method of preparing the ribs from him. He ran a barbecue ribs place in St. Louis during the early 1900s.

"If I were to tell you how we make the ribs here, it wouldn't be a secret anymore," he laughed.

For those not inclined to order the ribs, the dinner menu also offers a variety of steaks, chicken, spaghetti and various entrees "from the sea." A children's menu is available on several items while the carryout selections include barbecued ribs and chicken.

To complete the meal, Alexander the Great features an extensive wine and cocktail list as well as three different beers on tap. The two-for-one cocktail hour runs from 11 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays.

At lunchtime the menu provides a number of sandwiches, including the "Beef Steak Extraordinaire" and "Tuna Tom" for the calorie conscious, and such other favorites as the ribs, beef liver, spaghetti and shrimp.

Daily specials, with various combinations of potatoes, salads and free soup, are — liver and onions on Monday for $3.50; veal parmigiana, Tuesday, $3.75; baked mostaccioli, Wednesday, $3.50; steak bits, Thursday, $4.75; fish and chips, Friday, $2.95, and filet of sole, every day, $3.50.

Alexander the Great is a family-run restaurant with a Macedonian heritage, as witnessed by the establishment's name, honoring the country's former king.

Stevanovich boasts more than 25 years in the business, having started as the owner of a sandwich restaurant, "Cozy Corner," in Canada. His wife, Dorothy, makes the special sauces, in addition to the tasty apple strudel and rice pudding desserts.

His son-in-law, Tomovski, is a jack-of-all-trades, who handles the daily operations of the eatery. Tomovski's wife, Pauline, is in charge of various office duties.

"People get their money's worth here," remarked Tomovski, who like Stevanovich is a native of Macedonia. "We're committed to holding the line on prices. At some places you'll pay for a breakfast what we charge for a full rib dinner."

Open from 11 a.m. till 2 a.m. Mondays through Saturdays and from noon to 2 a.m. Sundays, Alexander the Great features the talents of entertainer Bob Springfield every Thursday, Friday and Saturday evening for no additional charge.

"We get people to come here from Troy, Toledo and all over to have the ribs," Stevanovich concluded. "They hear about us from their friends and neighbors and want to try the ribs. I'd say that 99 percent of the people I talk to after dinner are very satisfied."

Having enjoyed the ribs here on more than one occasion, I'm hardly surprised at such satisfaction.

Lionesses present tree to library

A flowering crabtree, courtesy of the Belleville Lioness Club, is the newest addition to the grounds at the Belleville Public Library. The tree planting ceremony, held in conjunction with National Library Week, coincidentally took place on Arbor Day, April 22. On hand for the presentation were Yolanda

Held in Washington, D.C.

Trio back from DAR confab

The 91st Continental Congress, of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) convened in Washington, D.C. April 19-24. Members attending from this area were Mildred Artley, Barbara Parsons and Mary Helen Fasing, all associated with the Ypsilanti Chapter, DAR.

All meetings of the Congress were held in Constitution Hall, a part of the DAR Building, owned and operated by the DAR at 1776 D. Street.

The objects of the organization were highlighted during this Congress. They are preservation of history, diffusion of education, and promotion of patriotism. In attendance were 2,670 Daughters from each state plus members from four foreign countries.

Highlights of the week included being entertained by the U.S. Marine Band and the U. S. Navy Band; hearing world famous soprano, Leontyne Price give a beautiful concert; hearing Fred C. Ikle, Under-secretary of Defense, report on the "Defense Policy of the Reagan Administration."

The Honorable Margaret Chase Smith, former U. S. Senator from Maine gave the opening message and touched on defense, our heritage and the constant pursuit of an educated world.

George Washington's 250th birthday celebration, was memorialized by a tour to his tomb in Mt. Vernon where graveside services were held for both him and Martha Washington.

All dinners and luncheons were held at the Capitol Hilton Hotel. A special White House tour for DAR members only was held on Tuesday.

Membership in DAR is open to all women who can prove they have a relative who served as a patriot during the Revolutionary War of 1776.

St. Joe's volunteers honored

St. Joseph Mercy Hospital recently held special ceremonies to honor its many volunteers. In keeping with National Volunteer Week, the dinner paid homage to men and women alike including Art Brickman of Belleville (at left) who chalked up 1000 hours at his out-patient registration duties. Peg Morgan (right), also of Belleville, puts her volunteer hours in at the admitting desk and was honored for 100 hours service.

potpourri

By Lee Smith
Suburban Living Editor

Grocery shopping — or marketing, if you prefer — is a big enough pain without all the added irritations that seem to go with the task. If you're a list-maker (which we're told in countless articles that we SHOULD BE) and then get to the store only to find you're MINUS that list, you've already chalked up pain-in-the-neck number two. Just having to make the TRIP is number one.

Parking is the next phase and you pass up that convenient handicapped spot for a space out in left field and then watch as a might healthy-looking hulk slides his 4-wheel drive into that very slot.

Right after you discover your list is missing, you make the turn which puts you out of sight of the entry and THEN find you cart has a frozen wheel or one that wobbles. Or better still, you find you selected the one with the annoying soprano screech.

At the produce counter you're told in no uncertain terms that no, you may NOT buy just a half dozen potatoes; you HAVE to take the whole ten pounds. "But, m'am, those Idahos are in the bulk." I don't WANT bakers for potato soup, mister, and that bagful would go to seed before they'd ever see daylight again.

In Fantasyland (the candy sector) you come upon an untended cart bearing a lively youngster just having the time of his life tearing into a package of Tootsie Rolls. You also get to witness scene two when mama ambles back, yanks the bag from darling's little gooey hands and throws it back on the shelf. (But don't worry, someone else will come along, discover the opened sack and help him-or-herself to some of the contents, too.)

Aha, then it's time for the meat department where a little sign says "Ring for service." Have you ever tried to find what it IS you're supposed to ring? Buzzer, cowbell, handbell, one of those smack-it-on-top "ding" bells? And do you suspect someone on the other side of those 2-way mirrors is having the time of his/her life watching the frazzled little housewives doing the treasure hunt bit? And when a shopper finally gives up and knocks on the swinging doors, what does he/she get? A rather exasperated scowl, hunch of the shoulders and a determined march to the target. See, dummie, right there — behind that pile of neckbones, where else!

Speeding down aisle number four and berating yourself for forgetting your mittens and woolies (you've reached Antarctica) you try to snatch the frozen juice, vegetables, whatever, before frost bite sets in.

You warm up quickly, however, when on making a U-turn into the next lane, you witness a gal sticking her finger into a bottle of Catalina (or is it Italian) dressing and giving it the old taste-test. Cheeze, "lady", if you're any kind of card player, you're realizing this is no poker-face you're looking at; the message is THERE!

The daydreaming mama with the chocolate-coated kid somehow got ahead of you again and there's the evidence to show for it — a jar of marmalade lying center-aisle — smashed for all to obstacle-course around.

In between all these little ventures, you're trying to recall what exactly was on that danged list! The items you're remembering are, quite coincidentally, the very things they're out of — chunky clam chowder, dark rye, water chestnuts, diet pop (they're ALWAYS out of the diet pop, you like and, of course, the items they "don't stock" — brand-name vanilla, small cans of decaf coffee, the "new" whipped topping and etcetera.

And, moments later, the thing that really ticks you off — finding perishables — meat, frozen foods, dairy items — lying abandoned on shelves anywhere from cereal to cleaning supplies. You're annoyed because you know YOUR costs are going to go up because of such carelessness, indifference and plain stupidity.

About the only thing that's an improvement since you changed environment is the fact you no longer stand in long, long lines to be checked out.

Betcha never thought this would end on such an upbeat note, did you? Well, it won't! There're still those darn bags to get to the car (and thank God winter and the snowdrifts are gone) and into the trunk. Only half the time do you remember to tell the bagperson to "pack me lightly, please" but — when you forget, there you are with all the canned goods (feeling like tons to heft) in one bag.

Of course, you're not home yet. There are those other stops to make (because the first place didn't have all your needs and the fun of running up and down the aisles trying to find those elusive few items.

And then the finale — home again, home again — and doing the reverse of what you've just accomplished (like a film being run backward). If you chance to request, too, that all the freezer and 'fridge things be bagged together, you're in luck since those get taken directly to their storage areas before the sacks start dripping; if not —

You guess it really isn't all THAT bad if you just erase from your mind that you paid a dime more for crackers than you did a week before, 12 cents more on cheese and WAY too much for bell peppers which the "other store" had for half the price.

And you only have to kick yourself once for having forgotten the main things on that forgotten list — the ingredients for the new dish you were GOING TO MAKE for dinner.

TAURUS IN THE SPOTLIGHT

Heading off this week's list of those born under the sign of the bull are a quite diversified trio — all May 2 babies — Engelbert Humperdinck (who, we understand, is just "Engelbert" these days); Dr. Benjamin Spock and Theodore Bikel. And candles on their cakes numbered 46, 79 and 58 last Sunday.

Mary Astor, one of the few who made the transition from the silents to the talkies, was 76 May 3; Walter Slezak was 80 and Frankie Valli, a mere youngster by comparison, was 45.

Today, May 4, is the 53rd for Audrey (My Fair Lady) Hepburn and the 52nd for opera star Roberta Peters.

And it will be "Happy Birthday" time tomorrow for Anne Baxter, who'll be 59; Theresa Brewer, 51; Pat Carroll, 55; Alice Payne, 67; Freeman Gosden (the "Amos" of Amos and Andy,) 83; and Tammy Wynette, 40.

Stewart Granger and Orson Welles have a mutual birthday date — May 6 — and will turn 69 and 67, respectively.

Darren McGavin reaches 60 May 7 and on the 8th Melissa Gilbert will be 18; Rick Nelson, 42; Don Rickles, 56; and Toni Tennille, 39. Harry S. Truman, our 33rd president, would have been 98 and a certain third grade teacher north of Chicago also claims May 8 as "special."

RECIPE TIME

A recent note from a friend in Arizona included the question, "What's happened to the recipes in 'potpourri', you haven't had any lately?" And to get us "back on the ball", she said, she was including a marvelous recipe she'd had at a coffee, that for "Rocky Road Brownies." So, folks, — direct from the Grand Canyon state, we have...

ROCKY ROAD BROWNIES

1 pkg. (18½ ozs.) chocolate cake mix
2 eggs
¼ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup water
1 pkg. (6 oz.) semisweet chocolate bits
½ cup marshmallow creme.
Grease a 13x9x2 inch baking pan. In large bowl, mix together first four ingredients until smooth. Stir in chocolate bits. Spread batter evenly in greased pan. With metal spatula, swirl in marshmallow creme to create a marbled effect. Bake in 350 degree oven for 25 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool completely and cut into squares. Makes 32 (2-inch) squares.

Volunteers applauded at St. Joe's

An awards dinner served by administrative staff and department representatives at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital honored some 200 volunteers who regularly donate their time and energies to the needs of the complex.

Held in observance of National Volunteer Recognition Week, the April 22 event applauded the "special touch" which this service gives to patients.

Among the "giving people" were Arthur Brickman of Belleville with a total of 1,000 hours work; Alvin De Long of Belleville with 800; Rita Haynes, Gloria Henry and Peg Morgan, all of Belleville, with 200 hours; and Lucille Kwasny and Melinda Parsons with up to 90 hours.

Volunteers are special people in as much as they not only detect the needs of patients and families but also of the staff and are there to help with those needs.

The girls' grandparents are Russell and Phyllis Seaman of Belleville and the Raymond Gorgas of Wall Lake.

Junior club women to assume state posts

Mrs. Marijo Shide, GFWC International President from Washington, will be the keynote speaker May 15 when the GFWC-Michigan State Federation of Women's Clubs holds its 87th Annual Convention in Marquette. Mrs. Nancy Sawyer, president of the Belleville Junior Study Club, announced recently. Mrs. Shide will also install the newly elected officers of the MSFWC that evening. Among the local women who will be installed are Cathy Horste of Belleville, who will serve as State Junior Secretary, and Gloria Gregory-Gardner, who will serve as State Arts Department Chairman.

The GFWC is the largest and oldest nondenominational, nonpartisan, international service organization of volunteer women in the world. It has 10 million members world wide, 600,000 in the United States and 12,000 in Michigan.

In still incomplete reports, GFWC clubwomen of 21 states during a recent 10 month period gave 20 million volunteer hours and raised 22 million dollars for community projects. In Michigan, clubwomen have given over 75,000 volunteer hours and raised approximately $200,000 for community projects.

Anyone interested in learning more about Federation activities on the local level should contact Cathy Horste at 699-7968.

The Fitzwilliamses, who resided in Romulus for close to 40 years, are members of the Moose Lodge in West Branch and the 50 and Up Club. Mr. Fitzwilliams, who enjoys his hobby of miniature railroads, also belongs to the Masonic Lodge and does citizens patrol duty with the local CB club. His wife spends her spare time sewing and working on ceramics.

Family marks 94th birthday

By Mrs. Joseph Spring 699-4021

In celebration of Mrs. Rhea Sobolewsky's 94th birthday on April 22, her nieces, Geraldine Liedel, Virginia Carahan, and Agnes Savage, and her sister-in-law, Caroline Servis, gathered at her West Columbia Avenue home for a noon luncheon. Also present were her son and wife, Forrest and Wanda Shirley of Valrico, Fla., who had been spending the past week with her. ## Franklin captures 'Cosens' Tourney

Erupting for five runs in the top of the seventh, Livonia Franklin crushed cross-town rival, Stevenson, 10-1, to regain the coveted Walt Cosens-Memorial Baseball City Trophy.

Stevenson, the defending champ, couldn't solve the pitching of righthander Rich Wood, who checked the Spartans on a five hitter. Wood, who is 2-0 on the season, notched six strikeouts and walked three.

Franklin staked their junior hurler to two runs in the first inning, picked up two more in the third, added another in the fourth, then put it away with a five-run seventh that left Stevenson in a daze.

"The kids really wanted this one," said Franklin coach Gerry Cullin. "There is this natural rivalry between us and, after our slow start, these kids really have been wacking the ball."

Everyone contributed at least one hit in the championship game. Mike Williamson wielded a hot bat as he stroked three hits in four trips while Ken Aguzzi, Darryl Gagnon and Rich Popp each chipped in with two.

Cosens, who was a coach and athletic director at the Livonia-based high school, succumbed to a heart attack in 1977.

Franklin had a rougher time in the first round when the Patriots took on and defeated Bentley 2-1 behind another junior righthander, Bill Haynes' three-hitter. Haynes knocked off eight Bulldogs on strikes but gave up three bases on balls. Loser Tom Boyer deserved better fate as he also tossed three hits, fanned five and walked one.

The champs got all the runs they needed in the top of the fourth when Aguzzi singled, was forced out on Williamson's ground out. Then Gagnon singled Williamson to second and Popp advanced them to third, bringing to the plate Mike Minielly who got to Boyer for a two-run single.

In Northwest Suburban Conference action last week, Franklin lost a thriller 4-3 to Redford Union as Steve Smith was charged with the defeat in relief.

Franklin scored three runs in the fourth to tie the game up when Popp singled, then Lewis walked. Both runners scored on Minielly's triple. Minielly was chased home on Mike Johnson's base hit.

Redford Union broke the deadlock in the last of the seventh as Smith gave up a leadoff walk, a stolen base, sacrifice and a wild pitch.

Smith got a 7-4 victory over North Farmington, again in relief of Popp.

They're runners-up in volleyball

Finishing third best in their league didn't stop Solar's Machine in the playoffs where they reached the finals and lost to Canejo in the Romulus Co-ed Conference. Their efforts netted them the runner-up trophy. Team

Belleville girls fall game behind in chase for the title

Belleville's young and never-say-die softball team remains in the thick of the Suburban 8 Conference championship race, but Coach Peggy Curtis admits her Tigers "will have to catch Livonia Bentley."

"We're an excellent team if we can continue to mature the way we are," Ms. Curtis said. "But with four sophomores in our line-up we're going to make those mistakes."

Belleville managed to play over five errors to whip Edsel Ford 9-5 in their scheduled league game last week as sophomore hurler Judy Wisniewski tossed a five hitter, struck out four and walked four.

Belleville received excellent performances at the plate from Cerhi Shearer who collected two hits and drove in two runs and Debbie Stall whose double accounted for two RBIs.

In out-of-conference game, Wisniewski notched a shutout as she humbled St. Lyon 3-0 behind flawless defense. Wisniewski collected four strikeouts and walked only one.

Belleville scored all of its runs in the bottom of the third as Debbie Sumner walked, stole second. Ann Plaza also drew a base on balls, then Shearer drilled a run-scoring single. Kim Thick sacrifice, chasing home Palza and Shearer scored on an error.

Belleville launched the 1982 campaign with a 9-3 victory over Allen Park, then dropped a 3-10 ballgame to defending champ, Bentley, before beating Ann Arbor Huron in eight innings 7-6. Huron won the second of the twin bill 9-6, but the Tigers managed to shut out Dearborn 9-0 for their third victory against one loss in the league.

5 Tigers appear on All-Star ballot

Five Tigers, including first-timer Kirk Gibson, appear on the 1982 All-Star ballot.

Besides Centerfielder Gibson, the Tiger list also includes: Second Baseman Lou Whitaker, Shortstop Alan Trammell, Catcher Lance Parrish and Rightfielder Chet Lemon.

Trammell and Parrish saw action in the 1980 All-Star Game as Tigers. While playing for the White Sox, Lemon saw action in both the 1978 and 1979 games.

Gibson, striving to make the team the first time on the ballot, was leading the team with three homers and three game-winning RBI's through the first 17 games.

Whitaker, Trammell and Lemon all hovered around the .260 mark during the first part of the season while taking turns in delivering big hits. Parrish hurt his left hand in the season's second game and was getting ready to return when the ballot was released.

The 53rd All-Star Game will be played at Montreal's Olympic Stadium, Tuesday, July 13. It will mark the first time the game has been played outside the United States.

The Tiger's annual exhibition game for the benefit of sandlot baseball is coming up at Tiger Stadium on Thursday, May 6.

This year's exhibition again will be against the National League's Cincinnati Reds and all proceeds will be given to sandlot baseball in the Michigan-Ohio-Ontario area.

Since playing these exhibitions, the Tigers have helped to raise well over a million dollars for the support of amateur baseball.

The May 6th game is scheduled to start at 7 p.m. Tickets are $8 for box, $7 for reserved, $4.50 for grandstand and $3 for bleachers. Tickets can be purchased from parks and recreation department offices or at Tiger Stadium.

The Wayne Westland Mens Bowling Association is now accepting entries for its 35th annual Men's Bowling Tournament which will be held at Super Bowl, 45100 Ford Road, Canton.

Entry blanks are available at Fiesta Lanes, SuperBowl, Town & Country Lanes, Wayne Bowl, and Westland Bowl.

With two of its athletes accounting for six first places, Garden City West ended defending champ, Cherry Hill's domination of the Tri-River Conference field and track domain.

West handed Coach Dick Gordon's Spartans a 76-56 setback, ending what was one of the longest if not the longest dual meet conference win streak in the state. Cherry Hill had won 64 dual meets in the Tri-River over a period of 11 years before running up against a sterling West team last Thursday.

"It was a meet between two really excellent and inspired teams," Gordon pointed out. "West knew what it had to do, and they did it. Give them all the credit in the world.

"However, we're not out of this yet," Gordon added. "We still have an excellent shot at the title because West still must run Melvindale and Crestwood before the league championships."

Coach Gordon must have seen the handwriting on the proverbial wall when one of his hurdlers was disqualified for a "false start". And, Steve Sheahan, one of the Spartans most consistent winners, had an off day in the long jump, while teammate Greg Evans also lost the discus for the first time this season.

Patterson teamed with Outlaw to provide Coach Bill Pinnell's Tigers with six first places which helped subdue the defending champs.

Top UM-D athlete's Waynite

Two University of Michigan-Dearborn student athletes — a basketball player and a hockey player — have been named the school's 1982 Scholar-Athletes.

Mary Brewis, a junior from Wayne, a member of the women's basketball squad, and Jim Brailan, a freshman hockey defenseman from Dearborn, are the recipients of this year's award.

The Scholar-Athlete Award is given annually by the U of M-D Dearborn Alumni Society, the representative organization of the 8,300 member U of M-D alumni body. It carries a $250 stipend for each recipient and a plaque honoring the student-athlete for his and her achievements in the classroom and in athletic competition.

Brewis and Brailan were presented with the award here this evening (April 28) at the U of M-D Dearborn All-Sports banquet. James Ball, U of M-D Alumni Society chairperson, presented the recipients with their checks and plaques. In addition, the names of the 1982 winners will be added to a permanent display in the U of M-D Dearborn Fieldhouse.

Recipients are selected by a faculty/student/alumni committee, upon the recommendation of the respective men's and women's varsity coaches.

This will mark the second time the Brewis name has been affixed to the permanent trophy. Mary's brother, Bill, received the first male scholar-athlete award in 1977. In addition, two other brothers and a sister have played varsity basketball at U of M-D.

A graduate of Dearborn's Divine Child High School, Brewis captained the 1981-82 women's basketball team. In 23 games, she averaged 10.7 points per game, fourth highest on the squad, and led the team in assists with 146 in winning her third varsity letter. Brewis was selected as an all-star in the Sienna Heights tournament.

In the classroom Brewis has compiled an outstanding academic record of better than a B-plus average in U of M-D's demanding bachelor's of business administration degree program. She has been on the Dean's list in each of the past five semesters and was the recipient of the William J. Branstrom freshman prize for academic excellence.

"Based on her superior academic achievement and her consistent contributions on the basketball court, I believe Mary is a very deserving candidate for the Scholar-Athlete Award," says her coach Jill Eulitz.

Wayne sweeps twin bill from Edsel Ford

Perusse hurls 4-hitter for his first win

Saturday was the best day of the high school baseball season. The sun was there and the weather picture perfect, especially for Wayne.

Wayne, getting a 4-hitter from lefty Jerry Perusse, humbled Edsel Ford 9-2 in the opener of a twin bill, then came back and knocked off the T-Birds 6-2 in the nightcap.

"With this warmer weather I hope our kids will come back from their slow start," said Wayne Coach Jim Chronowski who has had little to smile about thus far. His Zebras haven't won a Great Lakes 8 Conference game in three starts and are sporting an over-all 5-7 record. "We're getting some key hits and the pitching in rounding into form - if we can continue to improve, we may surprise a few teams in the stretch," Chronowski concluded.

Perusse chalked up his first win of the young campaign as he fanned four, walked an equal number and fired the four-hitter. Edsel grabbed a 2-1 lead in the bottom of the first, but Wayne came back for two runs in their third, then put the victory away with a 6-run seventh inning.

In that seventh, John Novich ignited the rally when he worked starting and losing pitcher Joe Musial for a base on balls, then Don Vojtkofsky lined a single. But Musial got the next Wayne batter on strikes, however, it was all down hill for him from then on as he gave up RBI singles to Rich Browe and Perusse, then walked Dan Covault to load the bases.

After Musial also issued Matt Korte a free pass, forcing in another run, he was lifted for Pat Hamel who walked, gave up a bunt single to Mike Simonds, then balked to force in the final run of the game.

Vojtkofsky, the hottest hitter in the Wayne line-up stroked a pair of singles and scored three times. Browe also had a pair of hits, while Phil Kaske wound up with a single and double and one RBI.

Wayne rallied for four runs in the top of the eighth to snatch the second game away from loser Darin Armstrong who worked eight innings and allowed 13 hits. Eric Shultz, tagged for 10 hits, while striking out four and walking four, was credited with the victory. He's won three this year while losing one.

Wayne broke the deadlock with one away in their eighth when Lloyd Phipps hammered a two-run homer with Bill Duncan, who had singled. See WAYNE, Page B-9

It's time to launch your boat

Boat launching facilities of the Huron-Clinton Metroparks are now open, including Metro Beach Metropark near Mt. Clemens, Stony Creek Metropark near Rochester/Utica and Kensington Metropark near Milford.

All watercraft users will be required to have a 1982 Boat Permit (Annual-Regular - $7, Senior Citizen - $4, Daily - $2), plus the 1982 Vehicle Entry Permit (Annual-Regular - $7, Senior Citizen - $2, Daily - $2).

Watercraft operators using the Metroparks must comply with Marine Safety Act of 1976, plus local watercraft ordinances and Huron-Clinton Metropark rules. There is a 10 mile speed limit on the lakes and no water skiing is permitted at Stony Creek Lake and Kent Lake (in Kensington Metropark).

METRO BEACH METROPARK, a 750-acre site near Mt. Clemens, has launching ramps that accommodate up to eight boats simultaneously located along the Black Creek, which provide access to Lake St. Clair. Parking is available for 210 boat trailers and cars, and additional parking is available in the main parking lot. Park officials caution boaters that the "No Wake" ordinance will be strictly enforced along the Black Creek. Vehicles remaining in the park overnight are charged $2 (in addition to the Metropark Boating Permit and Vehicle Entry Permit fee).

The ramps are open 7 a.m. to dusk. The park is open daily 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. The park phones are 463-4581 (Mt. Clemens) or 963-3022 (Detroit).

STONY CREEK METROPARK, a 4,435-acre site north of Utica and near Rochester, has ramps that permit up to 10 simultaneous launchings and parking spaces for up to 150 cars and trailers located at the south end of Stony Creek Lake. The launch site has a building and restrooms, lounge area, vending machines for food service and a snack bar on weekends. Park hours are 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily. For details phone 781-4242 (Washington exchange). Trailers, cars and boats are not permitted to remain overnight at the launch site at Stony Creek (except for those in the land storage area, which have been rented for the season).

KENSINGTON METROPARK, a 4,340-acre site near Milford, has two large boat launching sites on Kent Lake. Kent Lake covers 1,200 acres and is popular with fishermen and boaters. Bluegills, bass and crappies are caught in the lake.

At the East boat launching site, six boats may be launched at one time, with space for 60 cars and trailers and additional spaces for car parking only. The West boat launching site has space for 125 cars and boat trailers, with six to eight simultaneous launchings available at the 120-foot ramp.

Launching hours are 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. and the park closes at 10 p.m. Trailers, cars and boats are not permitted to remain overnight.

Van Buren begins soccer

The Van Buren Township Flames and Garden City Eagles opened the spring soccer season with a 1-1 tie game.

The Flames, struck early in the first quarter as forward Eric Harris scored a goal for Van Buren Township Flames' defense, John Thompson and Mark Liskey continued to keep the ball on Garden City's end of the field.

However, in the second quarter the teams were evenly matched in playing skill, as Garden City came close to scoring several times.

A quick dive on the ball by goalkeeper, Sam Terrell, during the early part of the fourth quarter kept Garden City from scoring. Sam's moment of glory soon ended when referee, Leon Rogers, penalized him for taking too many steps while returning the ball to the field for play.

In the penalty indirect kick on Sam, Garden City scored when the ball hit the cross bar, bounced on to the back of the goalie's head and into the goal.

Van Buren fans and coach Al Harris thought they had another goal when the ball appeared to go into Garden City's goal; but referee Leon Rogers reported, "the ball only rolled along the goal line and did not actually go into the goal." Garden City coaches, Warren Pfander and Brent Gephart, breathed signs of relief.

The score remained 1-1 in an exciting and fast game between the Garden City Eagles and Van Buren Township Flames.

Center finds 'a family for every waiting child'

"Adoption has gone from a parent-centered service that sought to find babies for people who could not have their own to a child-centered service that works to find families for the children who need them," according to adoption expert Claire Berman.

The children who need families range from pre-schoolers to teenagers and can include children from minority groups or children with medical, emotional or educational handicaps. These children, once considered "unadoptable" by agencies, are the first choice of many. People familiar with certain disabilities are perfectly comfortable with adopting a child requiring special care. Others are disabled themselves, and hope to pass on their coping abilities to a child, according to Ms. Berman.

Elizabeth Cole, director of the Permanent Families for Children unit of the Child Welfare League of America, said, "Experience has convinced us that there is a family for every waiting child. The challenge is to find that family."

Meeting that challenge has involved facing two critical realizations. While it is true that healthy white babies continue to be the scarcest commodity on the American adoption scene, agencies no longer let this fact overshadow the more than 120,000 children available for adoption. Agencies also needed to dispense with the rule of absolute confidentiality that was long associated with the adoption process.

One sign of this change can be seen in the growth of newspaper columns across the country devoted to photographs and write-ups of available children. Response has been tremendous — one column alone, Ruth Carlton's "A Child Is Waiting" in the Detroit News, has been credited with leading to the adoption of more than 490 featured children.

Many agencies have reconsidered their once-rigid standards and now allow qualified single men and women to adopt. Efforts have also been made to reach minority communities.

A greater awareness of and willingness to meet the needs of available children, on the part of agency officials and prospective parents, has led to a more effective and rewarding adoption. Today, there are no longer any "unadoptables," Ms. Berman concluded.

single run in the third. He left the game in the top of the sixth for reliever Korte who failed to stop the Bruin rally and was charged with the loss.

Wyandotte scored in their third, but Wayne responded with two runs in the bottom of the inning and tied it up at 3-all in the sixth. The Bruins who are 3-1 on the season put the winning run on the scoreboard in the seventh when Dennis Pustalka walked and Marty Swindle singled him home.

Glenn erupted for nine run ins the sixth to crush the Zebras 12-3 as Mike Dest and Tim Filary led the assault on losing hurler Phipps.

Air conditioning with a heat pump ...the smart way to cool your home this summer and save on year-round energy use.

Cool comfort in summer. Warm comfort in winter. You get both with a heat pump.

You also save on year-round energy use — when you add an energy-efficient heat pump to your present forced-air furnace.

A heat pump saves money because it moves heat, instead of creating heat.

In summer, it moves heat out of your home at an exceptionally low operating cost.

In winter, the heat pump moves natural outdoor heat to the inside of your home and provides all the heat needed during most of the spring, fall and much of the winter. Your furnace doesn't have to go to work until the outdoor temperature is about 32°F or below.

So, if you're thinking of buying central air conditioning this summer, take a good look at a heat pump. Then think of all the money it can save you on year-round energy use.

Nothing but a heat pump performs like a heat pump.

That's what makes it a very smart buy.

For more information about heat pumps, visit or call your Detroit Edison Customer Office.

Does Voc. Ed. really help?

Vocational Education training, then what? A survey by Romulus Community schools of Vocational Education graduates hopefully will answer that question. The schools will ask about 250 ex-students their opinion about the local vocational education programs. Above, drafting instructor Gerald Nault offers student Darrin Raley some valuable advice.

Romulus schools to survey vocational education pupils

Romulus Community Schools will ask about 250 former students for their opinions and other information concerning the vocational programs in which they were enrolled last school year.

Alice Barringer, Job Placement Coordinator, said the survey questionnaire will ask them to report what they are doing and how well they feel the school served their needs.

The annual survey, conducted in cooperation with the Michigan Department of Education, provides information for planning more effective local and state educational programs.

PCHA says you have a friend

"You've Got a Friend in the Hospital" is this year's theme for National Hospital Week, May 9-15, and Annapolis Hospital staff members will observe the special week by inviting their friends in the community to visit the hospital for tours and health screenings.

From Monday, May 10 through Friday May 14, area residents can tour the hospital between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. Groups interested in tours must register in advance by calling 722-4400, extension 240.

Free blood pressure screenings will also be offered Monday through Friday of Hospital Week in the hospital's front lobby from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. and 6 p.m.-8 p.m.

On Tuesday, May 11, Annapolis will offer free hearing tests in the hospital library from 1-4 p.m.

"We are looking forward to seeing residents during Hospital Week," said Lawrence Riesser, Annapolis Administrator. "There is no better way for a hospital to be a friend to the community than to acquaint people with the hospital and help prevent illness with screenings."

Riesser continued, "We would also like to help people to be their own best friend by taking care of their health."

National Hospital Week is sponsored each year by the American Hospital Association to foster better communication and understanding between hospitals and their communities.

'Little monkeys'

Great experiment'

Little Tammie Dickerson builds her dream world with sand, and sometimes taht's not easy.

Magic makers

Pre-school art activities using those sometimes magical "magic markers" lure Tia LaTrenja Bush (from left), Tammie Dickerson and Earnest Clark.

They call this work?

Eva Dickens and Special Education teacher Karen Jarger are involved in some very serious work like learning to manipulate a funnel and a spoon.

Romulus children 'visit' in unique project

The students in Miss Karen Jaeger's Special Preschool Program and those in Mrs. Cathleen Kudra's Head Start classroom in Romulus have been involved in a Mainstreaming visitation project since January, and the students in Miss Jaeger's morning and afternoon classes, who are certified Learning Disabled, Physically Impaired, and/or Speech and Language Impaired, "visit" the boys and girls in Mrs. Kudra's classroom.

But all enjoy learning in an innovative way.

"The project has met with much success," said Frank V. Curry, director of Special Education. "This has been a wonderful opportunity to share in new activities with a larger group where all of the children have been making new friends. The teachers also mingle within the group to help establish new relationships."

"This type of interaction of special education students with regular students is often referred to as Mainstreaming," he concluded.

To nominate state candidates

Romulus to host Libertarians

More than 200 Libertarians are expected to gather in Romulus May 7, 8 and 9 for "CHALLENGE '82," the 1982 nominating convention of the Libertarian Party of Michigan.

Founded in a Taylor living room in 1972, Michigan's third largest political party will celebrate its tenth anniversary with this year's state convention.

Because of its minor party status, the Libertarian Party of Michigan nominates its candidates for public office through convention rather than in a primary election. Over 80 candidates are expected to seek the party nomination this year, more than double the 37 candidates on the 1980 ticket.

Among the candidates expected to win a position on the Libertarian ballot are Dick Jacobs, a Grand Blanc businessman and author of a proposal to reduce the state's income tax who would be the party's first candidate for governor, and Dr. Bette J. Erwin, an Oak Park psychologist who will make her second attempt to replace Donald Riegle in the U.S. Senate.

Sheldon Richman, Vice Chair of the National Libertarian Party and Research Director for the Council for a Competitive Economy, a Washington, D.C. based free-market lobby, will be the Guest of Honor at the "CHALLENGE * B—¼ Banquet."

Long a champion of free-enterprise, Richman will deliver a speech entitled "Unemployment, Its Causes and Cures."

The convention will also feature workshops, films, elections of party officers, and a special breakfast with past-chairs of the Libertarian Party of Michigan. For more information about the Libertarian Party, write to: LPM, 357 Holister Building, 106 W. Allegan, Lansing, Mich., 48933.

Tax return copies backlogged

With the increasing demand for past tax records.

Good records will save time and make the filing of future returns easier. More information on recordkeeping can be found in the free IRS Publication 552, Recordkeeping Requirements and a List of Tax Publications," available from local IRS offices.

Pre-school round-up

Are you considering a pre-school for your child? The Western Wayne County YWCA Oakbrooke Nursery will be holding a Round-up for prospective students from noon until 1 p.m. Wed., May 12.

The pre-school program, for three and four year olds, is located at 15001 Brandt, near Eureka and Midlebelt. Oakbrooke Nursery is a co-op nursery and meets Monday and Wednesday mornings from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Mrs. Marilyn Garner of Romulus will be the instructor. The nursery is licensed by the State of Michigan.
